You are going to learn:

Topic: Weather — Bad weather

Words: sky, forecast, tomorrow, terrible

Grammar: Preposition (until)

Sing a Song

RAIN, RAIN, GO AWAY

Rain, rain, go a-way.
Come a-gain a-noth-er day.
Litt-le Bet-ty wants to play.
Rain, rain, go a-way.

Let's prepare!

Vocabulary

Can you see those birds
high up in the sky?

sky

Which one shows a blue sky?

Vocabulary

The weather forecast says it will be a cloudy day on Tuesday.

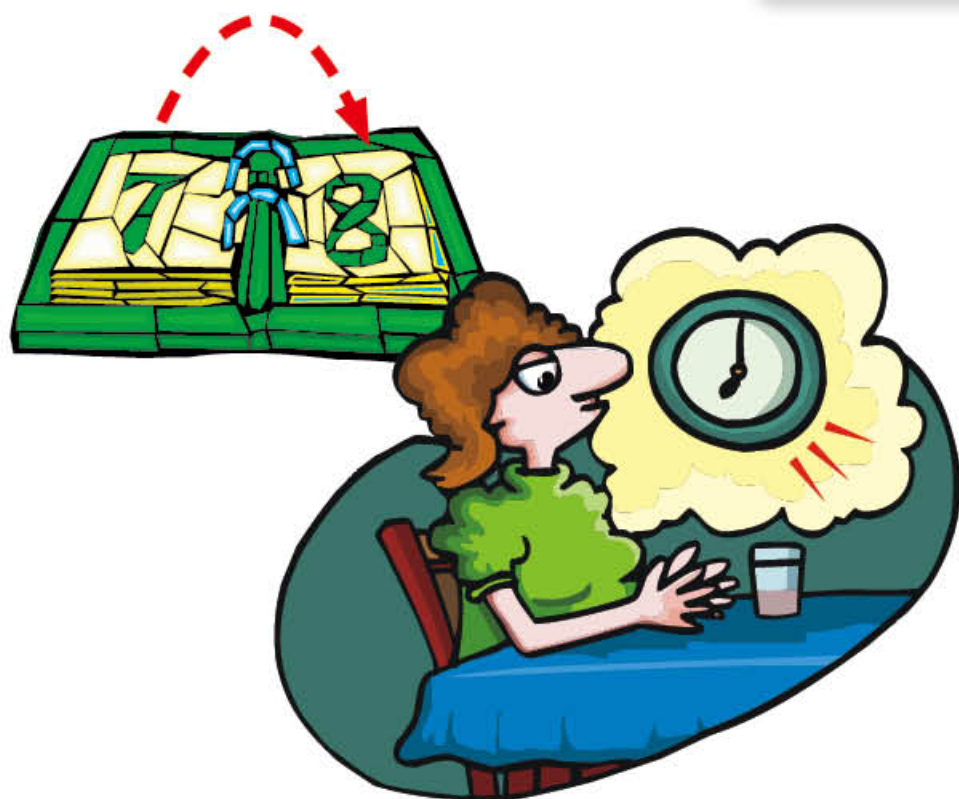

fore·cast

Which can you use to check the weather?

☐ weather forecast ☐ dictionary

Vocabulary

I don't have time today, so let's meet at 7:00 p.m. tomorrow.

to·mor·row

Today is Tuesday, so what day is tomorrow?

☐ Wednesday

☐ Monday

Vocabulary

I'm terrible at tennis.

ter·ri·ble

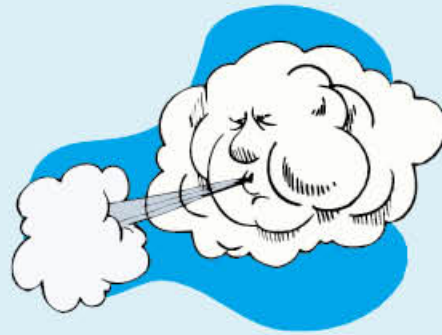

When you are terrible at something, what do you do?

Grammar

The forecast said that it will snow at least until tomorrow afternoon.

Let's talk!

Introduction

Timmy and his mom are talking about the weather.

Mom, it's freezing!
The sky is so cloudy.
Do you think it will
snow this afternoon?

Not only this afternoon. The forecast said that it will snow
at least until tomorrow afternoon.

Grammar

"Until" means "up to the time of".
e.g. The ticket is valid until March.

That's terrible! We have an important football game tomorrow.

That's too bad. Your coach needs to think about putting it off until next week.

Next week? That means there is no hope for better weather this week?

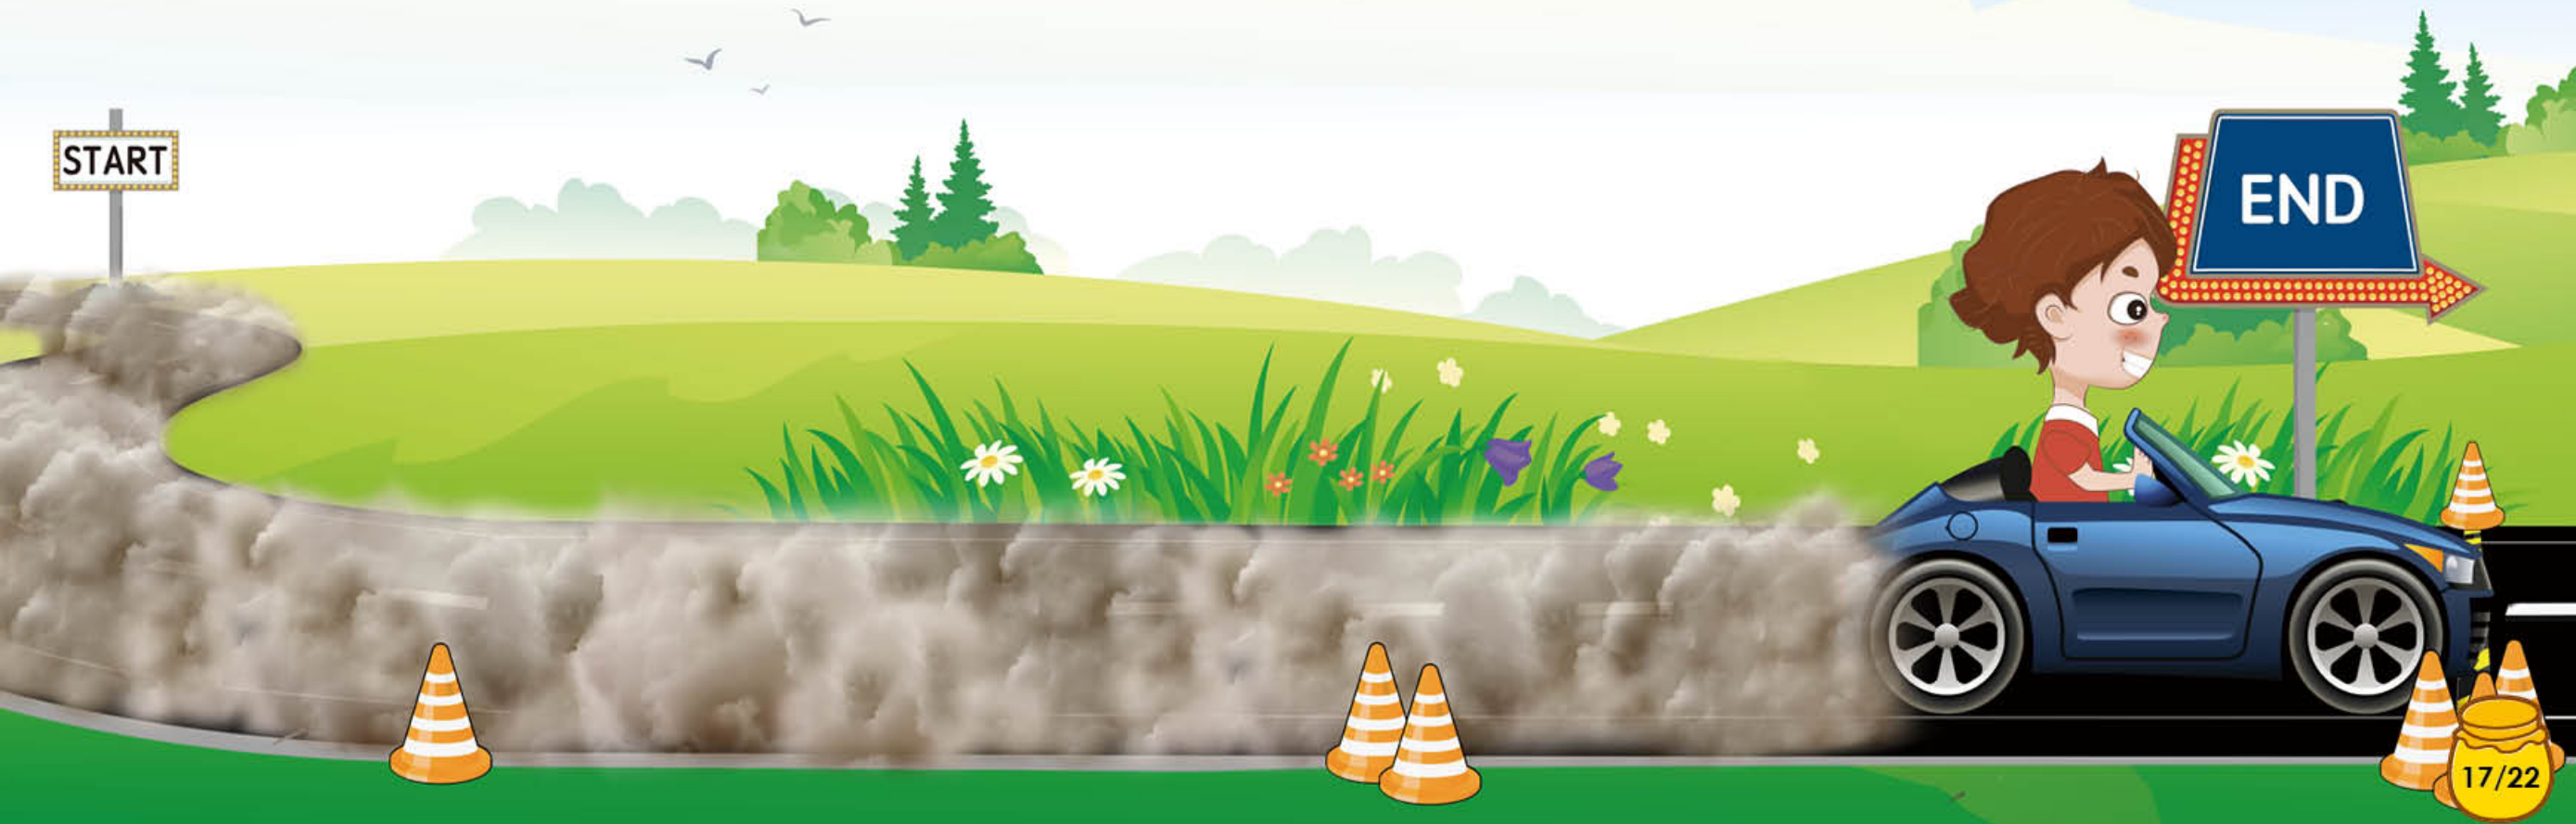

I'm not sure, but you need to think about allowing time for the snow to melt.

Alright, maybe it will be fun for us to have a snowball fight. I just need to think about who can be on my team.

Perhaps you can ask Emma to join you.

Let's practice!
