Let's Talk!

Conversation

01:00

Conversation setting.

Timmy's family is on holiday. They go back to the hotel in the evening after spending a day at the beach.

Conversation

03:00

Role play the conversation.

Mom, what happened to me? My skin looks very red.

Let me take a look. I think you've got sunburnt. Do you feel burnt?

Just a little. I used the sunscreen before I went out. Why did I get sunburnt?

What happened to Timmy?

Conversation

03:00

Role play the conversation.

Well, the ultraviolet rays from the sun are stronger at the beach than those in the town. One layer of sunscreen can't protect you for the whole day.

Is my sunburn serious? Will I look terrible in a few days?

No. Don't worry, Timmy. Your skin is not badly hurt. Go and take a cool bath first. Later, I will help you rub on some Aloe gel. It will soothe your sunburn.

Grammar

"Stronger" is the comparative form of "strong".

The comparative form is -er or more ...

1. We use -er for short words (one syllable):

fast → faster

2. We use more ... for longer words (two syllables or more):

serious → more serious

What is the comparative form of "quiet"?

Conversation

03:00

Role play the conversation.

So I can still go out to build sand castles tomorrow, right?

I think you'd better stay in the hotel for a few days.

But I can't stay indoors all the time. What if I have to go out?

You must use sunscreen, and remember to wear a hat. Both will protect you from a secondary burn.

What should Timmy do to avoid a secondary sunburn?
