Introduction

Timmy finds a photo of his mother playing volleyball. He asks Mom to explain the rules of volleyball.

Wow, Mom, look at this photo in the family album. Is that you?

Oh! It is a photo from when I was young. I was playing in a volleyball game.

Volleyball? I didn't know you played volleyball. What were you doing in the photo?

I was serving the ball. You know, throwing the ball into the air and then hitting it over the net. Players serve the ball at the start of the game and after someone scores.

So what are the rules to volleyball? Is it like tennis?

Um, not really. In volleyball, a team scores a point when the ball touches the ground on their opponent's side. Also, each team is allowed to touch the ball up to three times before it must go back over the net.

Maybe you can teach me to play volleyball someday. We can have a family game!

That's a great idea, Timmy! And by playing volleyball, you can learn about team spirit. You can't win a game alone — you have to trust your teammates.
