Introduction

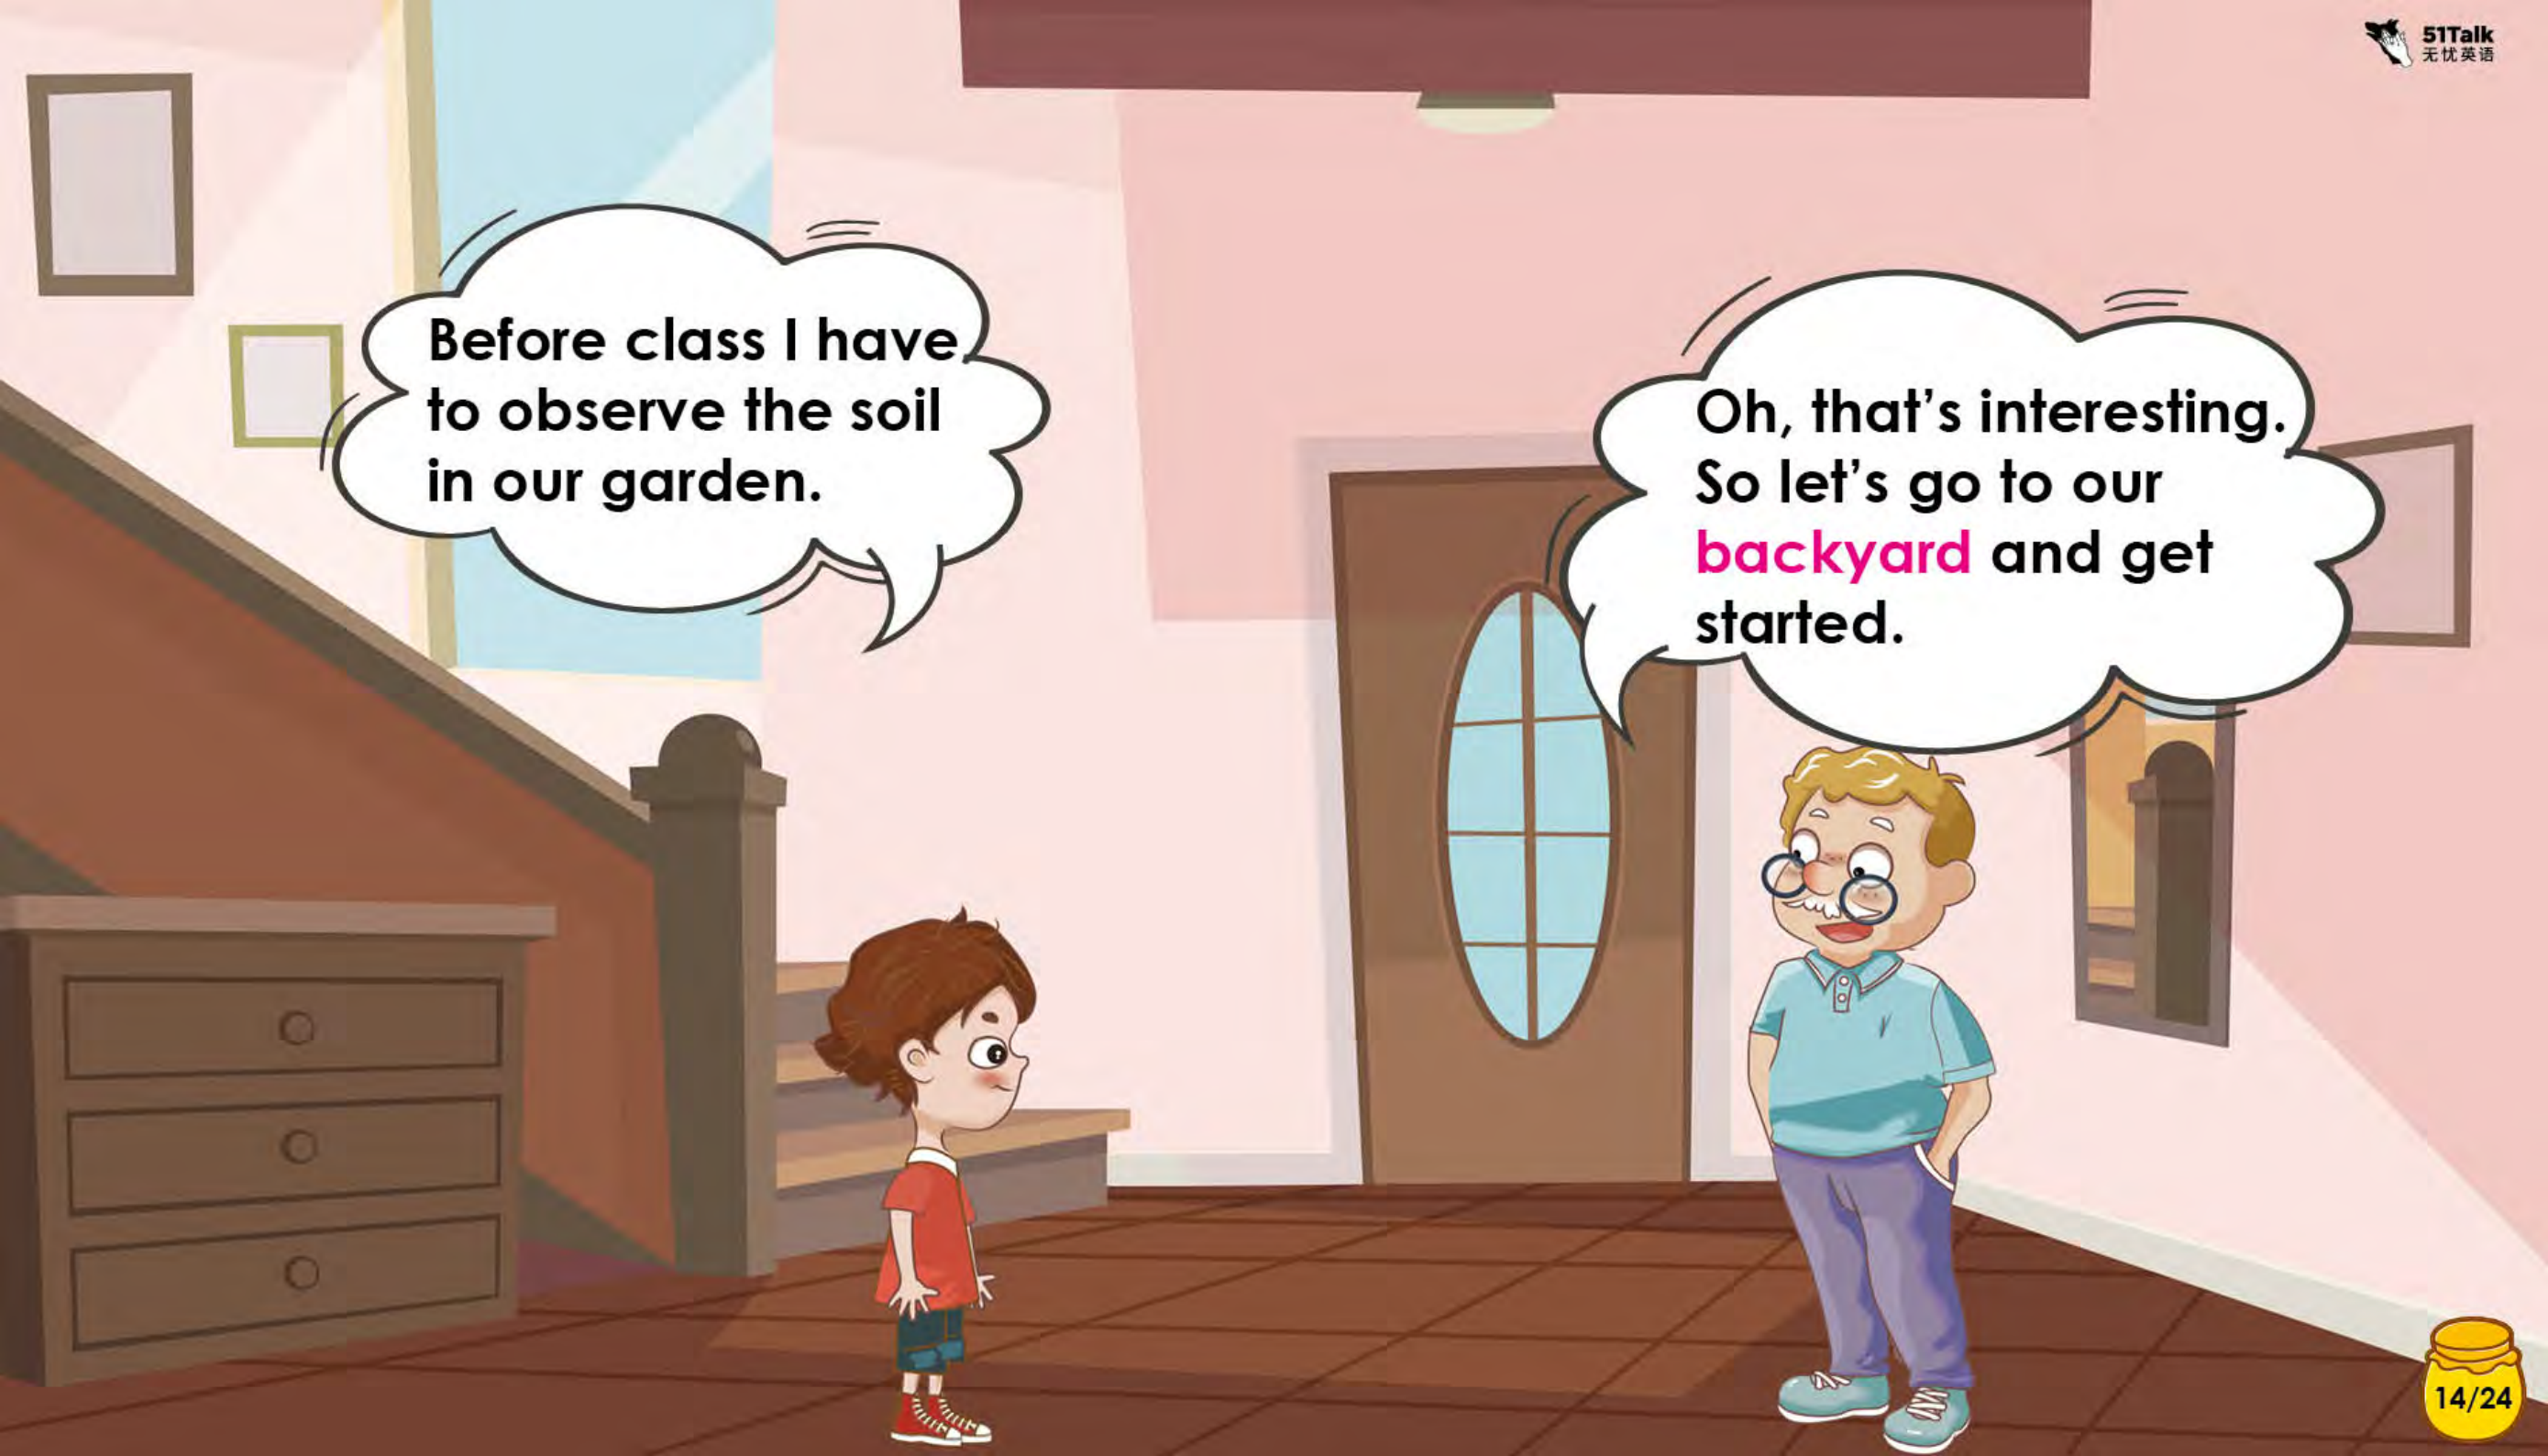

Timmy asks his grandpa to help with his biology assignment about garden soil.

Grandpa, our biology teacher said that we are going to learn about soil next week.

Good for you! It's good to know more about nature.

A cartoon illustration of a boy and a girl in a house. The girl, with brown hair and wearing a red shirt and blue shorts, is standing on the left, looking towards the boy. The boy, with blonde hair and glasses, wearing a light blue polo shirt and purple pants, is standing on the right, looking back at the girl. They are in a room with pink walls, a brown tiled floor, and a brown door with an oval window. To the left, there is a wooden staircase and a wooden cabinet with three drawers. A large white speech bubble is above the girl, and another is above the boy.

Before class I have to observe the soil
in our garden.

Oh, that's interesting.
So let's go to our backyard and get started.

Great! Can I use
your magnifying
glass, please?

Of course you can.
You will see much
more with it.

Grandpa, those tiny things
are broken bits of rocks, right? And what are these thin black things?

They are dead
leaves and dead
bugs, those kinds
of things.

Eek! Dead bugs!

Yes! Dead bugs!
Oh, look! There is a live one on your neck right now!

Let's practice!
