An Adventure in a Cave

Sarah and Bob were on a school camping trip. Suddenly, they saw a boy in animal skins appear in the distance, waving at them. Burning with curiosity, they started to chase after the boy. The next moment, Sarah and Bob found themselves outside a cave.

"Luckily I've got matches with me," said Sarah. Together they made a torch and stepped into the cave with care. "Look! Wall paintings!" Bob said. Some cavemen were fighting against a beast with three eyes. One of the cavemen was exactly the boy they saw before, the picture of whom was black and white, different from the others. "That can't be!" exclaimed Bob and he touched the beast accidentally.

fight against

We use "fight against" to say we fight to win or not get hurt for our own sake.

e.g.

In World War II, Britain fought against Germany.

All of a sudden, the beast jumped out from the wall. "What?" they freaked out. "Run!" Sarah yelled. The beast rushed toward Sarah. Sarah waved the torch, so the beast couldn't get close to her. But she became worn out very quickly. "Give me the torch!" Bob grabbed the torch from Sarah. Bob was stronger and he kept driving the beast away from them with the torch in his hand.

What problem did Sarah and Bob come across?

At this time, the weird boy appeared. He said nothing but pointed to the torch first, and then pointed to the beast's third eye on the forehead. "Throw your torch into its third eye!" Sarah yelled at Bob. "I can't. It's moving all the time!" Bob shouted. "Give it to me!" Sarah grabbed the torch and threw it right into the beast's third eye with all her strength. The beast darted quickly to the left, fell down, and then disappeared. Sarah and Bob sighed with relief, then they lit another stick and found that the boy on the wall was colored, and the beast was gone.

Did they solve the problem? What was the solution to this problem?

Sarah and Bob went back to their campsite. It turned out that they were away for only 10 minutes. Nobody noticed they had left. Sarah smiled at Bob, "That was the most exciting adventure of my life."
