air

Which one is the right description of air?

- ☐ It's colorful, and we can see it.
- ☐ It has no color, and we can't see it.

Vocabulary

We bought the house last week, and we move in now.

move in

Which one shows “move in”?

Grammar

The dog knocked over the vase.

Let's talk!

Introduction

There is a very strong wind today, so Timmy and Jack are spending their break time inside. They are looking out the window at the wind.

Wow! Look! The wind just knocked over the garbage bins again! It sure is being bad today...

Actually, you should blame the sun. I just read about it in a book.

Grammar

Phrasal verb: knock over “Knock over” means to hit something so that it falls.
e.g. I knocked over a chair when walking by.

14×14

No way. How can the sun be blamed for the wind! That's just stupid.

No, seriously. Air rises when it gets heated by the sun, and other air has to take its place.

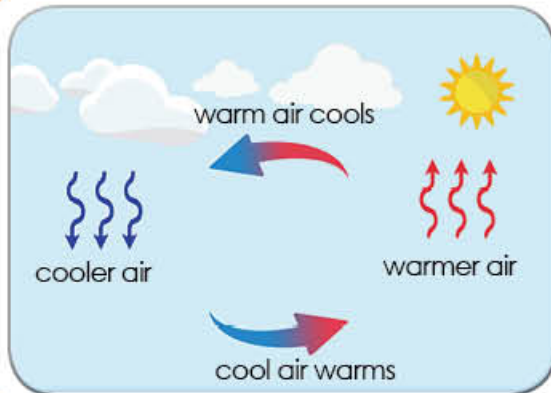

SCHOOL

Oh! So you mean as the warmed
air rises, cooler air moves in?

SCHOOL

Yes! And that moving cool air is the wind! And it knocks over things that block its way.

14×14

Oh, so the sun is being naughty because it makes the wind knock stuff over!

Ha-ha!
That's funny!
