Declarative sentence

A declarative sentence is used to make statements or give information. It's called "declarative" because it declares or states something.

- Timmy is studying in the living room.
- Emma is playing with dolls.

Make two more declarative sentences using the picture.

• LET'S READ! •

We'll read a passage about Timmy's experience on an airplane.

Check the things that you think Timmy can do on an airplane.

☐☐☐☐

Now, let's find out what happened to Timmy on the airplane.

READING COMPREHENSION

Timmy and his family have just finished their vacation. Timmy thought that this was his best vacation ever. Timmy couldn't stop talking about it on the airplane.

How did Timmy feel about his vacation?

READING COMPREHENSION

“Dad, I really hope we can come back again someday. The beach, the sea, the sunshine! Everything is just perfect for us!” shouted Timmy. Then he began to spread his arms and kick his legs. “Dad, look, I am swimming in the cabin!”

What did Timmy do in the cabin?

READING COMPREHENSION

The man seated in front of Timmy could feel Timmy kicking his chair. He tried to adjust his seat again and again. But Timmy didn't seem to notice. He waited for Timmy to stop, but he didn't. The man became more and more impatient.

Why did the man become impatient?

READING COMPREHENSION

The man turned around and said gently to Timmy, "I am so sorry to interrupt you, but I need to have some rest. So could you please stop kicking the back of my seat? I would really appreciate it."

What did the man do?

READING COMPREHENSION

“Oh, I’m really sorry!” said Timmy. Then he looked at Dad and said, “I’m sorry, Dad! I didn’t know.”
“It’s OK, Timmy. But remember that you need to behave nicely in public places,” Dad said kindly.

What did Dad tell Timmy?
