Let's Talk!

Conversation

01:00

Conversation setting.

Timmy's dad had his car repainted last week. He is going to pick up the car from the garage today.

Conversation

02:00

Role play the conversation.

Time to get the car back, Timmy. Are you coming with me?

Sure, I'd like to. It really took a long time to get our car repainted.

Yeah, painting a car is not an easy job, Timmy.

It doesn't sound like a difficult one. How is it done?

Conversation

03:00

Role play the conversation.

I think you really asked the right person.

Awesome! Tell me about it!
You know I like learning everything about cars.

First of all, the car will be stopped in a large, extremely clean room. Then the workers paint it with a special machine, which is called a spraying machine.

relative clause: ..., which/who ...
It gives us extra information about the person or thing.

e.g.

- My brother Jason, who lives in New York, is an actor.

Conversation

03:00

Role play the conversation.

What if dirt or dust gets on the car while painting?

Well, in that case, they will have to repaint the car, because the dirt and dust will make the paint look bumpy.

So that's why people who work in these rooms must wear special suits, right? I saw that once.

What do we do if dust gets on the car?

Conversation

03:00

Role play the conversation.

That's right. Each paint job ends with a final layer of see-through paint, which is called a clear coat. And after that dries, the car will be inspected very closely with a special camera.

I have to say repainting a car is not as easy as it sounds.

What is the last step of a paint job?
