The Laziest

We are going to learn about some of the laziest animals in the world.

Warm-up

2 min

What can you see in these pictures?

Reading*3 min

Read with the teacher and then move to the Word Focus.

What do you think it would be like to sleep all day and only wake up to eat? Well, here are three lazy animals that do just that.

Word Focus

- Peter is a lazy boy because he always likes to sleep.
- Do you think you are a lazy person? Why?

Reading

4 min

Read with the teacher and then move to the Word Focus.

The panda is one of the laziest animals. It eats bamboo and just lies around all day. Since the bamboo just gives it a little energy, the panda needs to slow things down.

Word Focus

- Terry ran really fast, so now he has no energy to do his homework.
- Do you have lots of energy after school?

Reading 3 min

Read with the teacher and then answer the question below.

The sloth is known for being one of the slowest movers because it rarely comes down from its tree. Since the sloth only eats leaves, it doesn't need to move far or fast.

Why does the sloth choose to live in a tree?

Reading 4 min

Read with the teacher and then answer the question below.

The koala is another one of the world's laziest animals. It too, sleeps for most of the day and only wakes up when it's hungry. Just like the sloth, it rarely has to leave its tree either.

Why is the koala one of the laziest animals?

Let's practice. >>
