Introduction

The day after coming back from the forest, Timmy feels something wrong with his left arm.

Mom, look at my arm — see how big the bump is! It's so itchy!

Oh, you must have been bitten by some kind of bug.

It's got to be from yesterday! I got stung by those bugs.

You mean when
you and your dad
went to the forest?

Yeah, I should have listened to Dad and used the bug spray.

OK, now hold onto your sleeve. I am going to put some cream on the bump.

Grammar

Phrasal verb

“Hold onto” means to hold something tightly or carefully so that you do not drop it or do not fall.

e.g. Hold onto the seat in front when the bus makes a turn.

If it was Grandpa,
he might suck out
the poison with his
mouth to cure me!

But your Grandma
would stop him
doing that.

Ha-ha! But Mom, it still feels itchy.

Don't scratch!
Hold onto
your sleeve
for a while.
