Conversation

Role play the conversation.

Sam, look! I found a wonderful book.

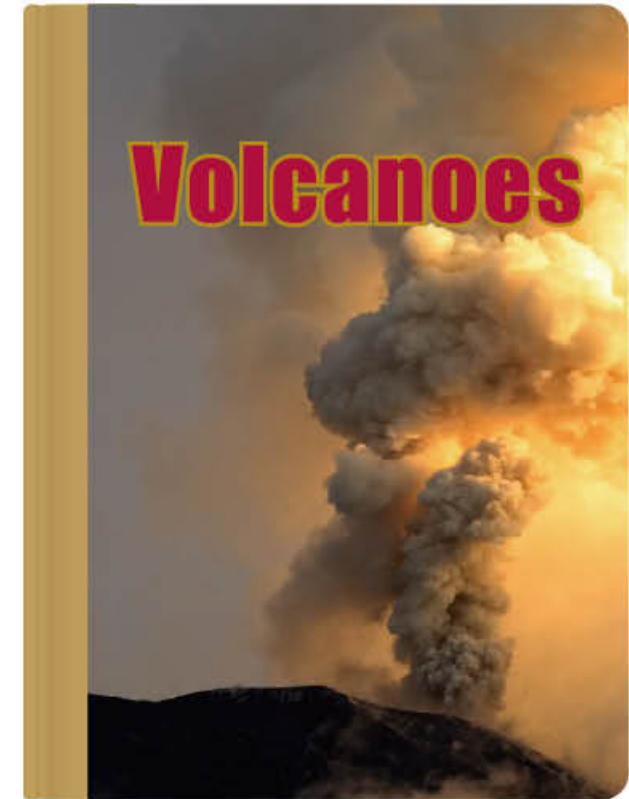

Volcanoes! I didn't know you were interested in volcanoes.

Actually I was attracted to the cover. Look! Huge clouds of ash are shooting high into the sky.

Wow, it's spectacular! But why isn't there red lava in the volcanic eruption?

Grammar

verb + object: find a book

e.g. I saw a film yesterday.

Conversation

03:00

Role play the conversation.

Yes, I have the same question.
Why don't we check and see if the answer is in the book?

Here it is, "Types of volcanic activities." It's said that not all the eruptions are followed by hot lava flowing down a mountainside. Some produce clouds of hot ash, gas and rocks, which are equally devastating.

So scenes of fresh lava glowing red, exploding out of a crater are more like special effects from movies?

Why didn't Timmy and Sam see lava on the book cover?

Conversation

03:00

Role play the conversation.

There are eruptions like that according to the book. Look at this one. Isn't it beautiful?

Wow, it looks like a fire fountain! It even has its own name, Hawaiian eruptions! It gets the name from the Kilauea Volcano on Hawaii Island.

No wonder. Timmy, I'm thinking of getting this book as well.

Why not? Let's both get one.

What's a Hawaiian eruption like?
