GRAMMARAdverb clauses of purpose

An adverb clause of purpose tells us why a verb is used in a sentence. Common conjunctions used to introduce adverb clauses of purpose are so, so that, and in order that.

Example:

We need to eat so that we may live.

The adverb clause “so that we may live” tells us why the verb “eat” is used in the sentence.

Complete the sentences using adverb clauses of purpose.

1. I am saving my money so that _____.
2. I study hard, so _____.
3. I am learning English so that _____.

READING SKILLComparing and contrasting

We compare to show how things are alike.

We contrast to show how they are different.

We use Venn Diagram to compare and contrast.

Read the passage and answer the questions.

Ant and Cricket were good friends. They liked playing games and eating leaves and grain. One day, Cricket saw Ant collecting some food. Cricket asked ant to play, but Ant said he needed to save food for the winter. Cricket would rather play than work to save food. When winter came, Cricket had no food. He regretted not working to save food.

1. How are Ant and Cricket similar?

- ☐ They both work hard to collect food.
- ☐ They both like eating leaves and grain.

2. How are Ant and Cricket different from one another?

- ☐ Ant and Cricket would rather play than work.
- ☐ Cricket would rather play than work while Ant saved food.

MY SAVINGS GOAL

Cindy and Anna are good friends. They are in the same class at school and like to spend a lot of time together. Cindy and Anna both do chores. They both make a $20 allowance every week for their work. Cindy has very good saving habits. She likes to save money. Anna does not.

When Cindy and Anna go to the movies, Anna spends a lot of money. She buys a ticket, popcorn, soda, and lots of toys. Cindy only buys a ticket and a lollipop. Anna thinks Cindy should spend more, but Cindy disagrees. Cindy just likes watching movies with Anna. Cindy's saving money so that she can buy her mother a present.

SALE

Cindy wants to buy her mother a beautiful necklace. It will cost her $50. This is her savings goal. It's not a cheap present, but Cindy doesn't care. She likes to give her mother nice presents. Anna never saves money. When Cindy and Anna go to the mall, Anna likes to shop at all the stores. She'd rather spend money than save it.
