Let's talk!

Introduction

Timmy and Asnee get ready for their geography test.

Hey, Asnee. Are you ready for the test on the ten largest capital cities?

Yeah, I guess. But let's ask each other some test questions.

OK. So the first question is... What is the sixth largest capital city in the world?

Oh. Um. It's that Australian capital... Sydney! No – I mean Canberra!

Grammar

Ordinal numbers

An ordinal number is a number that tells the position of something in a list, such as first, second, third, fourth, fifth etc.

A cartoon illustration of two children standing on a grey path in front of a large orange school building with a clock tower. The building has a red flag on top and several windows. The sky is light blue with white clouds. There are green trees and grass on either side of the path. The child on the left is a girl with brown hair, wearing a red shirt and blue shorts, pointing her finger. The child on the right is a boy with black hair, wearing a white shirt and brown shorts, holding a green bag. Two speech bubbles are present: one from the girl on the left and one from the boy on the right.
