GRAMMAR

Modal verbs (has/have to and doesn't/don't have to)

You put has/have to before another verb to talk about an action that needs to be done.

Timmy has to be home in time for dinner.

You have to put on your seatbelt before the car starts.

On the other hand, you can use doesn't/don't have to to talk about an action that is not really needed.

It's still early.

Sam doesn't have to run.

This is a gift.

You don't have to pay me.

Fill in the blank with the correct modal verb.

1. I _____ score one more point to win this game.
2. She did nothing wrong. She _____ apologize.

READING SKILL*Comparing and contrasting

Comparing and contrasting can help readers better understand the text they are reading. By comparing things, they find out how things are the same, and how they are different. Contrasting only draws attention to how things are different from one another.

Read the passage.

Blind man's bluff and tag are fun games usually played outdoors. In these games, one participant has to be the "it." The "it" in a blind man's bluff game is blindfolded while the one in a tag game isn't. In both games, the "it" has to catch one of the participants running around. Whoever the "it" catches will be the new "it."

1. How are blind man's bluff and tag the same?
2. How are blind man's bluff and tag different from each other?

SCAVENGER HUNT

A scavenger hunt is a fun game you can play at a party. If you've never done a scavenger hunt before, here's how you play.

Before a scavenger hunt starts, the game's organizer gives the participants a list.

This list has items the participants have to find. The organizer then informs the participants where the items are. Some items may be easy to locate, like a rake, while others are hard to find, like a ladybug.

The scavenger hunt begins when the organizer gives a signal. Everybody then starts to look for the items at the same time. The first participant to find every item on the list, wins.

Another version of this game is called the treasure hunt. Treasure hunts and scavenger hunts are the same except for two important differences.

First of all, the things you find in a treasure hunt are the actual prizes you get while the things in a scavenger hunt are usually neither useful nor interesting, like a leaf or a weed. The prize you win in a scavenger hunt is something not on the list, and the winner receives it after the game.

The second difference is that in a treasure hunt, you have to find the items in the order they are written down on the list. On the other hand, you don't have to follow the order on the list when you are on a scavenger hunt.

Be it a scavenger or a treasure hunt, the most important part of the game is for the participants to have fun!

Complete the sentences.

In a scavenger hunt and a treasure hunt, the participants _____.

In a treasure hunt _____ while in a scavenger hunt _____.

WRITING PREPARATION

Put the facts in the correct spaces.

- A ... you do not need to find the items in order.
- B ... the game starts when the organizer gives the signal.
- C ... the items on the list are actual prizes.
- D ... the winner gets the prize after the game.
- E ... you need to find items on a list.
- F ... you need to find the items in order.

WRITING PROJECT

Talk about the games you learned by answering the following questions.

1. How is a scavenger hunt played?
2. How is a treasure hunt played?
3. Which game do you like more? Why?

Write a passage about this after class.
