Introduction

One day, Anna and Cindy are talking about clothing materials.

Hi, Cindy! You look great today! Your sweater is beautiful.

Thank you. My mom bought it for me yesterday. It's not only beautiful, but also very warm.

That's great. So what material is the sweater made of?

It is made of wool. My mom told me wool comes from sheep. It can keep us warm in winter.

It reminds me of my sweater. It feels almost the same as yours, so maybe it's made of wool, too.

Maybe. But my aunt told me that there are lots of other materials for clothing, like silk and so on.

Oh, silk... Doesn't silk come from silkworms?

Yes. How did you know that?

Because my mom told me. She has a dress made of silk. She loves it. She says it feels so soft and smooth.

That sounds amazing! Let's get our moms to buy us one!
