GENRE*Informational text – How-to

Nonfiction refers to fact-based literature, stories, and opinions about real people, animals, things, or events.

Informational text is a kind of nonfiction that does not make use of characters. How-to informational texts give practical instruction and advice on making or doing things.

Example:

A shopping list will help you spend less time in the supermarket and make sure that you have everything that you need. Another way to finish supermarket shopping quickly is by going there early to avoid the crowd. This way, you'll have a better shopping experience at the supermarket.

Answer the question.

What does the passage do?

- a It gives helpful information about saving time at the supermarket.
- b It tells an imaginative story about making time faster at the supermarket.
- c It argues about the best way to shop at supermarkets.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY

Have you ever wanted to buy something?

Maybe you want a new soccer ball or a fancy dress. We all want to buy new things sometimes. But how can we save enough money to buy the things we want?

Today, we'll talk about saving money. The first step to saving money is to record how much you spend each month.

How much do you think you spend each month?

After you know how much money you are spending, you can make a budget. A budget tells you how much of your money you can spend every day. A budget is a good way to help you reach your savings goal.

Of course, to record your expenses and make a budget you'll need some money. Do you get an allowance? Maybe you can do some chores around the house.

What chores can you do at home to be able to get an allowance?

After you've made your budget you should look at your spending habits. Get rid of any unnecessary spending. Try to save 10% of your money every month. Use shopping lists when you go to the store and avoid spending too much during the holiday season. These are good saving habits.

What's a good thing about using shopping lists?

Now that you have a budget and some savings, you can think about how you would like to spend your money. This is the fun part! Maybe you would like to buy a special gift for your parents to show that you love them. Maybe you would like to donate your money to an animal shelter or charity. There are many considerate ways to spend your money!
