GRAMMARParticiples (adjectives ending in -ing)

An adjective that ends in -ing can be used to describe how something or someone can make you feel.

For example: Timmy's day on the beach was very relaxing.
This means Timmy's day on the beach relaxed him.

Put -ing after the correct word to form a present participle.

1. Snakes and frogs terrify Cindy. She thinks they are terrify.
Snakes and frogs terrify Cindy. She thinks they are terrifying.
2. Golf and chess are bore to Timmy. They bore Timmy.
3. Football games always thrill Sam. For Sam, football is the most thrill of sports.

READING SKILLDetermining fact and opinion

A fact is something that can be proven with the help of science or history. An opinion is something that some people believe but cannot prove with science or history. When someone gives an opinion, they say, “I feel,” “I think,” or “I believe.”

Read the passage and answer the questions that follow.

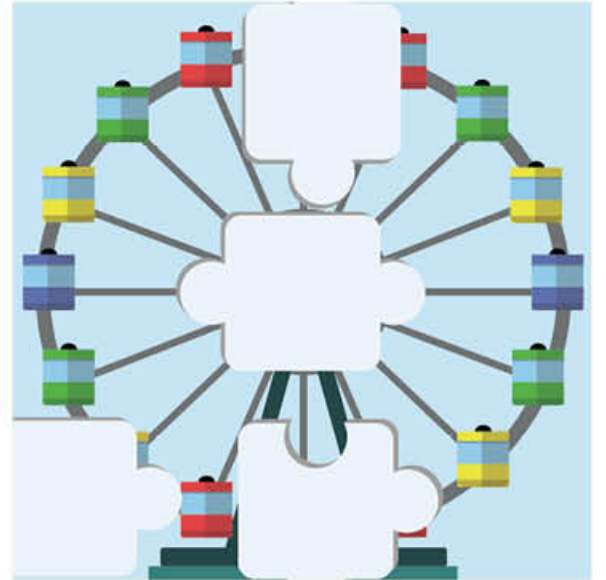

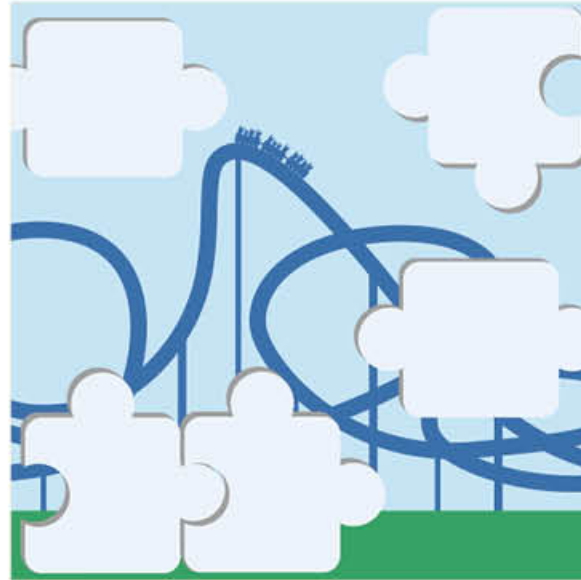

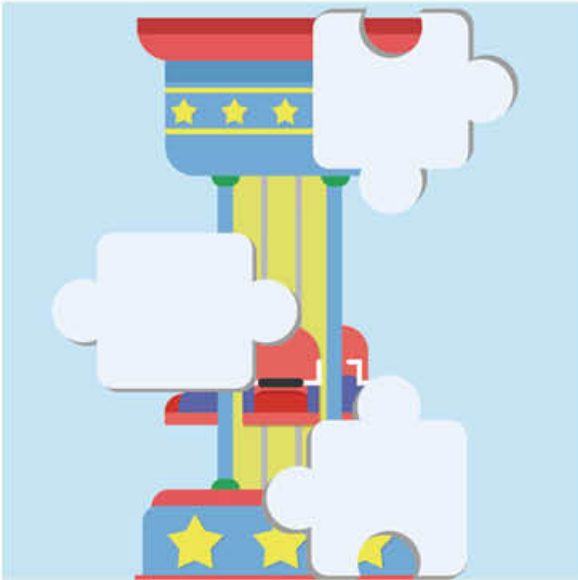

William Shakespeare was an English writer who lived hundreds of years ago. He wrote thirty-seven plays. Many people around the world still read and perform these plays today. Many people believe that Shakespeare is the greatest writer in history.

THE SCARIEST RIDES AT THE AMUSEMENT PARK

While an amusement park may have many different rides, its most popular ones usually move very fast, take people to very high places, or do both. This is because lots of people want to try things that scare them. If you're one of them, here are some of the scariest rides you can try.

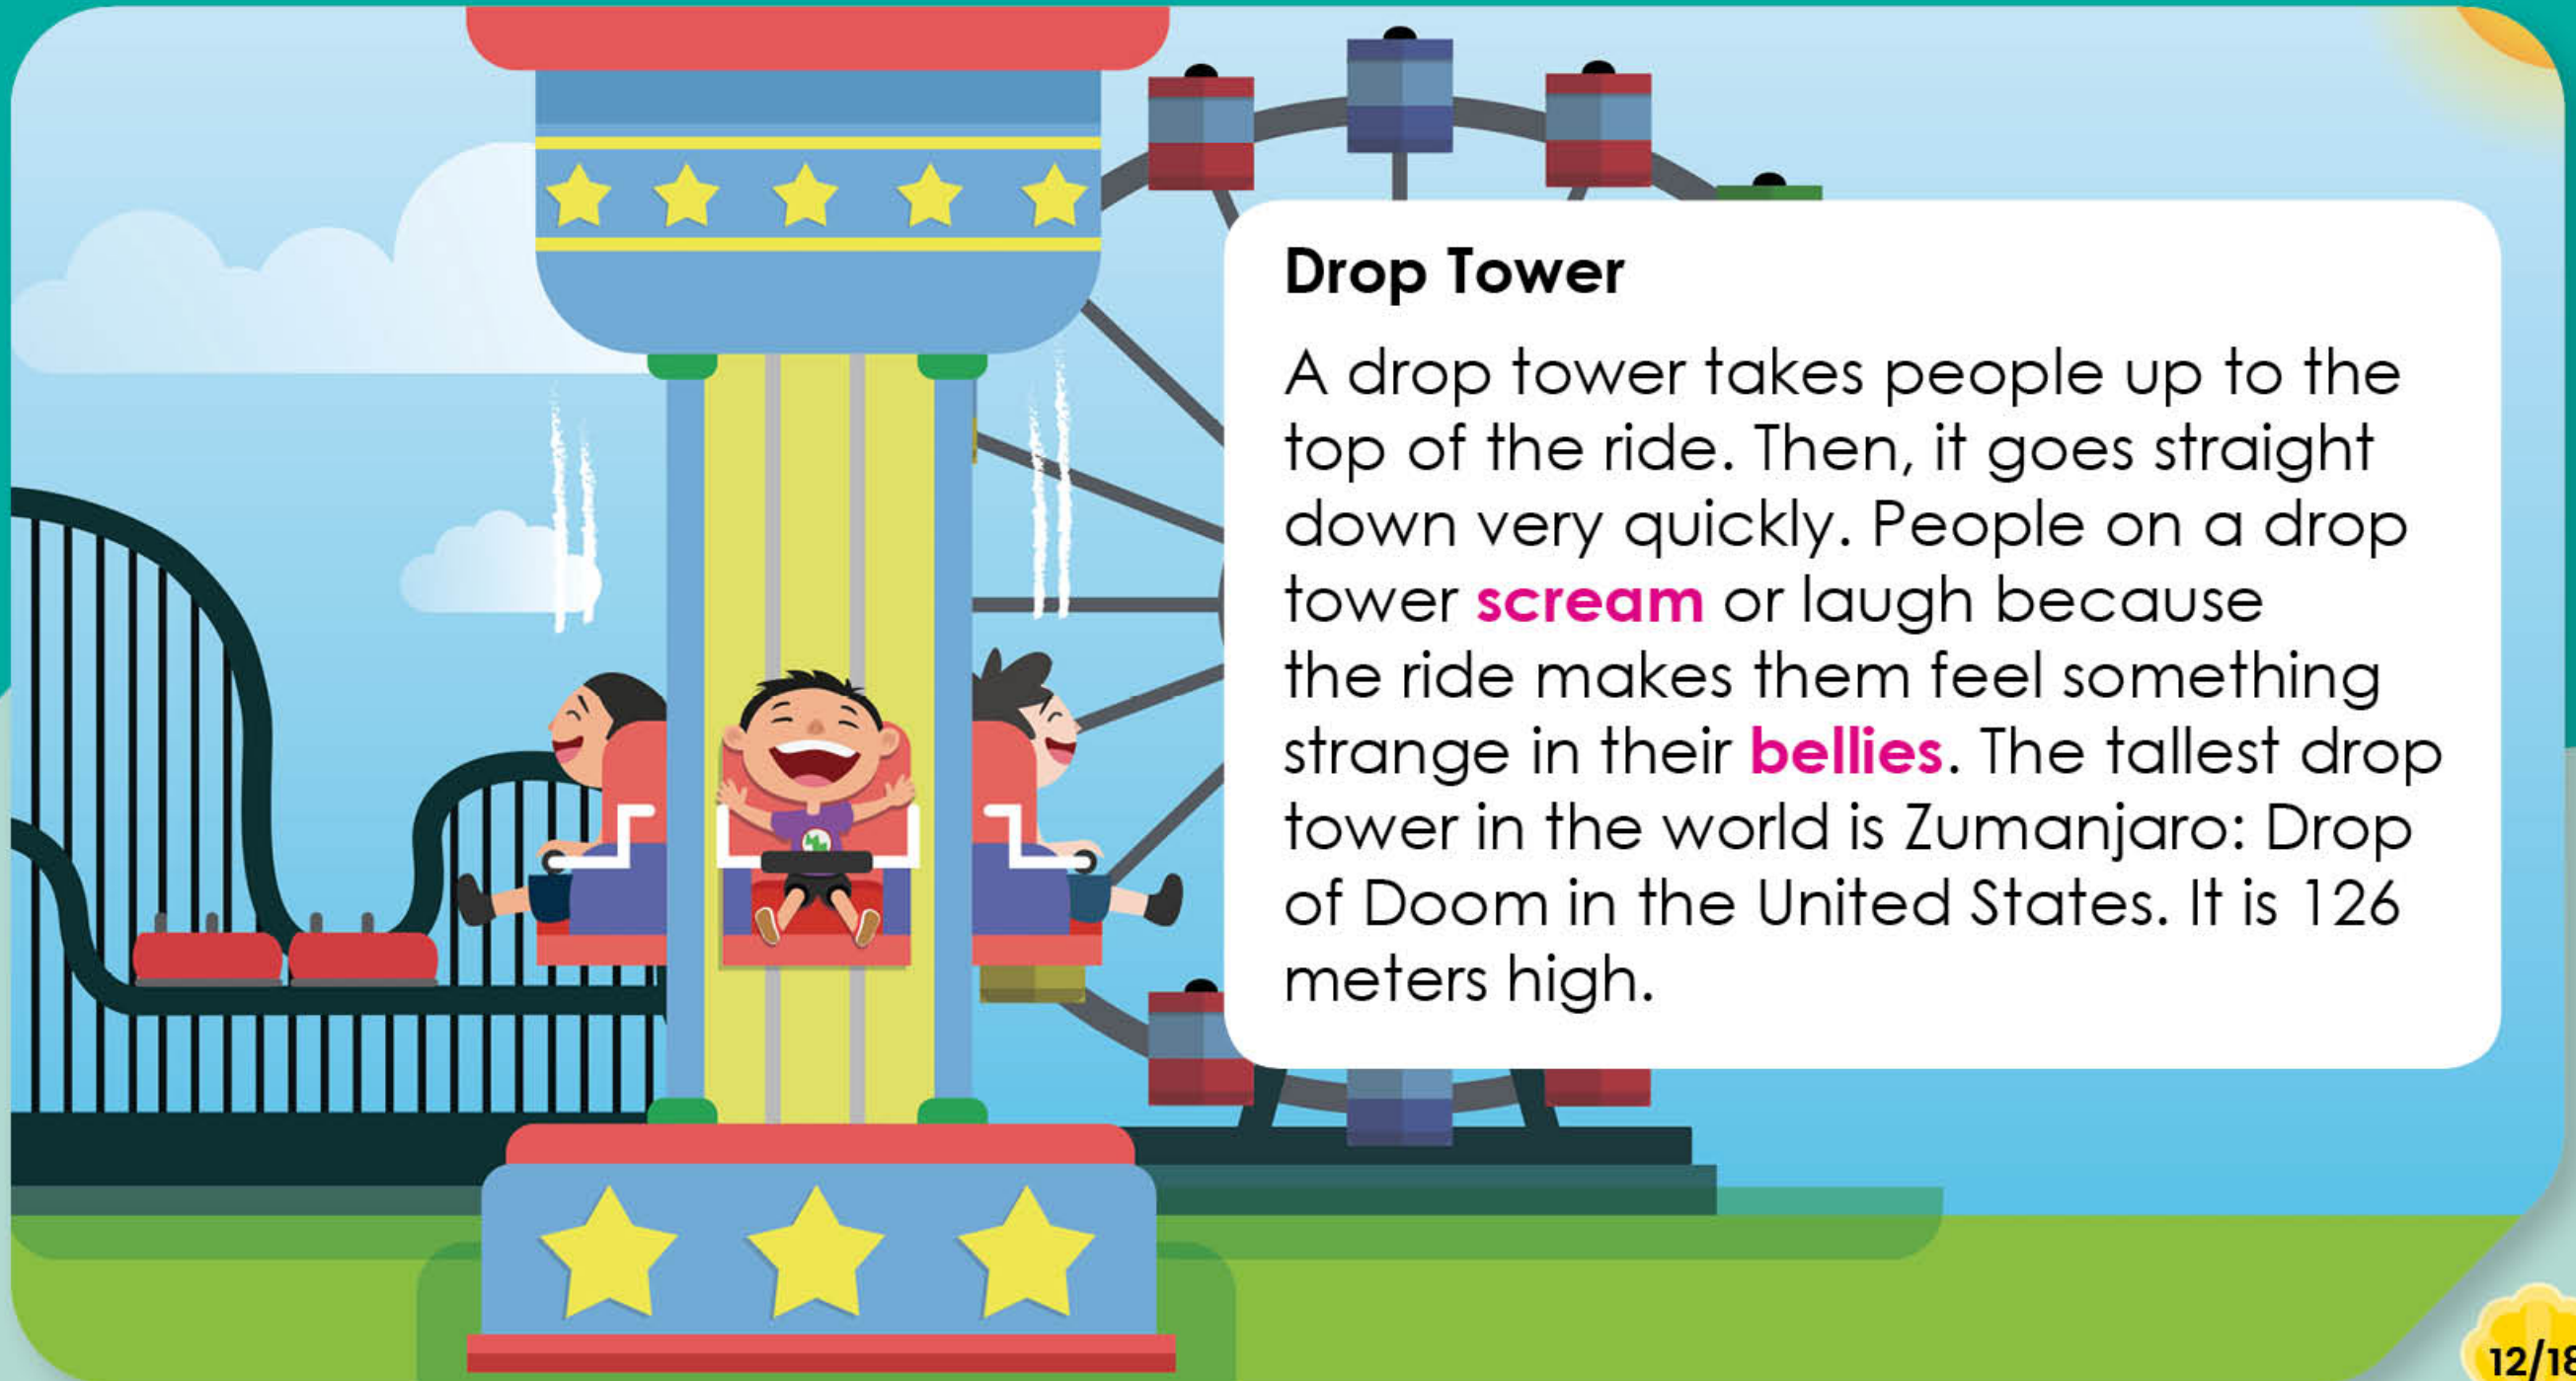

Ferris Wheel

When a Ferris wheel turns, it takes people from the bottom of the wheel to the top and then down again. Most Ferris wheels don't move very fast, but they can be scary for people who are afraid of high places. The High Roller in the United States is the world's tallest Ferris wheel at 167.6 meters.

Dark Ride

This kind of ride takes you inside a dark space that has robots or people dressed as ghosts or monsters. They suddenly move or come out of their hiding places to terrify people. The Fata Morgana in the Netherlands is one of the biggest and most popular dark rides in the world. It has 140 robots that can surprise or scare you.

Drop Tower

A drop tower takes people up to the top of the ride. Then, it goes straight down very quickly. People on a drop tower scream or laugh because the ride makes them feel something strange in their bellies. The tallest drop tower in the world is Zumanjaro: Drop of Doom in the United States. It is 126 meters high.

Roller Coaster

A roller coaster is like a train, except that it goes up and down very quickly. Many people say that the best roller coasters have loops. They believe that the more loops a roller coaster has, the scarier it is. The Smiler in the USA is a roller coaster with 14 loops.

A lot of people think that the roller coaster is the best amusement park ride because of the thrill they feel when they ride one. In the USA alone, more than 300 million people ride roller coasters every year.

Give one fact about roller coasters.

Give one opinion about roller coasters.

These are just four of the many kinds of scary rides you could see in an amusement park. Visit the nearest amusement park to try the different fun, exciting, and scary rides!
