Let's read!

Once upon a time, there were three little pigs. The first pig lived in a house made of straw. The second pig lived in a house made of sticks. And the third pig lived in a house made of bricks. One day, a big, bad wolf saw the three pigs and wanted to eat them...

What were the three little pigs' houses made of?

The wolf went to the straw house and said:
“Let me in or I will blow your house down!”
The little pig stayed quiet. Then the wolf began to blow very hard. Huff..! Puff..! Finally,
the house fell down, and the pig ran quickly
to the next house...

Grammar

Adverbs

Adverbs modify verbs, telling you how things happen or how people do something.
e.g. They are dancing happily.

Which house did the wolf blow down?

The wolf was angry. He tried again at the stick house. This time he couldn't blow it down, so he smashed into the house until it fell down. But the scared pigs ran to the next house...

What did the wolf do to the stick house?

A colorful illustration of a brick house with a red roof and a brown door. A grey wolf is in the foreground, blowing a large gust of air towards the house. The air is represented by a large, light blue, cloud-like shape. Inside the house, two pink pigs are looking out from a window. The house is surrounded by green bushes and a blue sky with a small blue bird flying in the top right corner.

Now the wolf was really angry! He went to the last house – the brick house. But this time he could not blow or smash the house down. It was too strong...

Why couldn't the wolf blow or smash down the brick house?

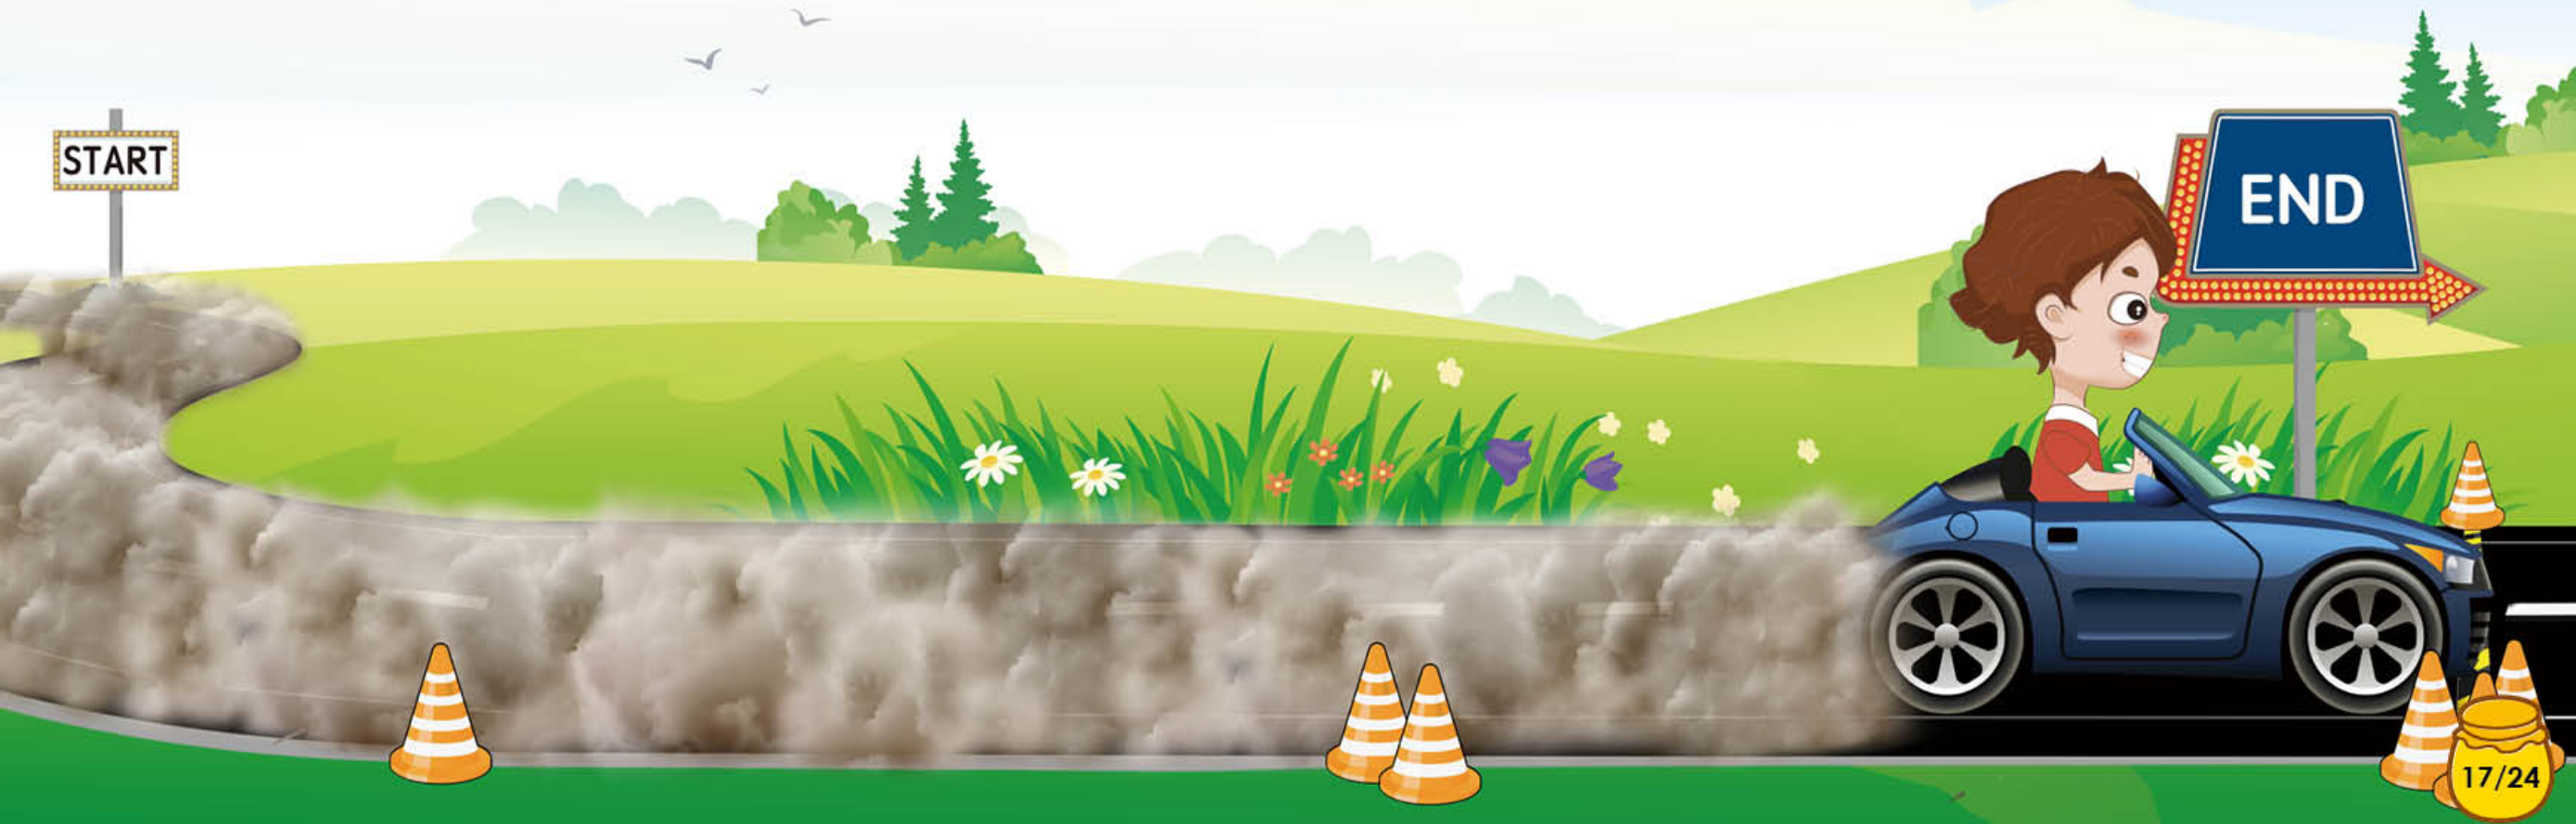

The clever wolf then tried to climb down the chimney. But, he fell straight down the chimney and right into the pigs' hot, boiling soup pot! The pigs enjoyed their wolf-soup!

What happened to the wolf in the end?
