Role-play

Choose a role to play in this conversation and read with the teacher.

Boy: Hi, Aunt Mary! You are a journalist. You have to do lots of travelling in your job, don't you?

Woman: Yes, Robert. I went to the airport yesterday. An important person was coming to see me.

Boy: Did you give him a lift back into town?

Woman: That's right. In my new racing car! But there was lots of traffic on the motorway.

Boy: So were you late?

Woman: No, I drove fast!

Role-play

Woman: I wanted to find out some information at the museum in the city center on Sunday.

Boy: Did you go by train?

Woman: Yes, it's quick and easy. You can buy tickets from the machine and there are computer screens everywhere with all the information you need about the times and platforms.

Boy: You go to such interesting places. You're so lucky!

Woman: I know. I had to go and look at a castle last week. I'm writing about it for a newspaper.

Boy: How did you get there? By taxi?

Woman: Not this time. I caught a bus but that was a bad idea! It took such a long time to get there!

Boy: Oh dear!

Woman: And I had to go to the police station one day.

Boy: Why?

Woman: Because I lost my money when I cycled to the shopping center last weekend. The police station was too far to walk, so I went there by taxi.

Boy: Could the police officer there help you?

Woman: Not really. He asked me several questions ... Perhaps they'll find my money. I don't know.

Boy: Where did you go on Thursday?

Woman: Into the forest. Someone saw a bear there, so I wanted to write about that for the newspaper, too. It was a brilliant day!

Boy: Why?

Woman: Because I flew there in a helicopter. I was very high in the air.

I could see all the trees below me.

Boy: Did you stay in the forest all day?

Woman: No, I came home and then went out to dinner.

Boy: Where? To your favorite restaurant on fifth Street?

Woman: That's right! I went there by boat this time. It was lots of fun.

Boy: Wow!
