Model 1

What and when: I want to describe my first time learning how to ski last year.

Where and with whom: Last winter holiday, I wanted to learn how to ski, so I went to Jinhui Ski Resort which is in the north of Beijing. I went there with my cousin who is quite good at skiing.

What you did: We rented ski equipment and clothing at Jinhui Ski Resort. When everything was ready, my cousin began to teach me how to ski. He gave me some safety tips first. Afterwards, he taught me how to keep balance and how to move my way up and down a mountain. Luckily, I was a fast learner. I acquired all the basic skills soon. Then I tried to ski by myself.

Why: It was my first time learning how to ski. I was very happy that I was able to acquire all the basic skills of skiing during the first time. Besides, it was exciting to slide down the mountain. The feeling was like flying. I am looking forward to going skiing again.

Model 2

What and when : Last summer, I tried skydiving. As I have always been afraid of heights, it was really an adventurous activity for me.

Where and with whom: I did it with my classmates in Sanya.

What you did: We signed up first. Then we spent 3 hours training in the morning. We learned things such as how to jump out of the plane and what the right position was. In the afternoon, we went on a plane which flew about 11,500 feet high. With the help of an instructor, I jumped out of the plane. I couldn't help screaming when I fell through the sky. I was flying like a bird. Unfortunately I finally landed on a tree, but I wasn't hurt at all.

Why: It was my first time going skydiving. I have to say it was really exciting. When I fell through the sky, I felt like I was flying like a bird. Most importantly, I overcame my fear of heights.

You are required to talk for the full 2 minutes.
