As the man tried to swing the speedboat around, the steering wheel came away in his hands. ^[1] He waved desperately to his companion, who had been water skiing for the last fifteen minutes. Both men had hardly had time to realize what was happening when they were thrown violently into the sea. The speedboat had struck a buoy, but it continued to move very quickly across the water.

1. ...who had been water skiing for the last...

➤ 过去完成进行时
Use [past perfect continuous tense] (had been doing) to talk about actions or events which started before a particular time in the past and were still in progress up to that time.

E.g. (1) Had you been waiting long before the taxi arrived?

(2) Her friends had been thinking of calling the police when she walked in.

(3) We had been trying to open the door for 5 minutes when Jane found the key.

Both men had just begun to swim towards the shore, when they noticed with dismay that the speedboat was moving in a circle. It now came straight towards them at tremendous ^[2] speed. In less than a minute, it roared past ^[3] them only a few feet away. After it had passed, they swam on as quickly as they could because they knew that the boat would soon return.

2. ...it roared past them only a few feet away...

➤ v. + a position prep.: to show the trail of an action

E.g. (1) run towards (in the direction of) the line

(2) swim across (from one side to another) the water

(3) walk past (go near sth. and keep moving) the tree

3. ...they swam on as quickly as they could...

➤ ^{adv.} v. + on: keep doing

E.g. (1) How can you work on so long without a rest?

(2) He drove on through blowing snow.

(3) You walk on ahead. I will soon catch you up.

They had just had enough time to swim out of danger when the boat again completed a circle. On this occasion, however, it had slowed down considerably. The petrol had nearly all been used up. Before long, the noise dropped completely and the boat began to drift gently across the water.

4. They had just had enough...when the boat again completed a circle.

= As soon as they had had enough..., the boat again completed a circle.

➤ A had just done... + when B did... = as soon as A had done..., B did...

E.g. (1) I had just got out of the car when Sam called me.

= As soon as I had got out of the car, Sam called.

(2) I had just entered the room when the door bell rang.

= As soon as I had entered the room, the door bell rang.
