

JOURNEY to the WEST 63

A Question for Buddha

A large shell rose from the water. . .

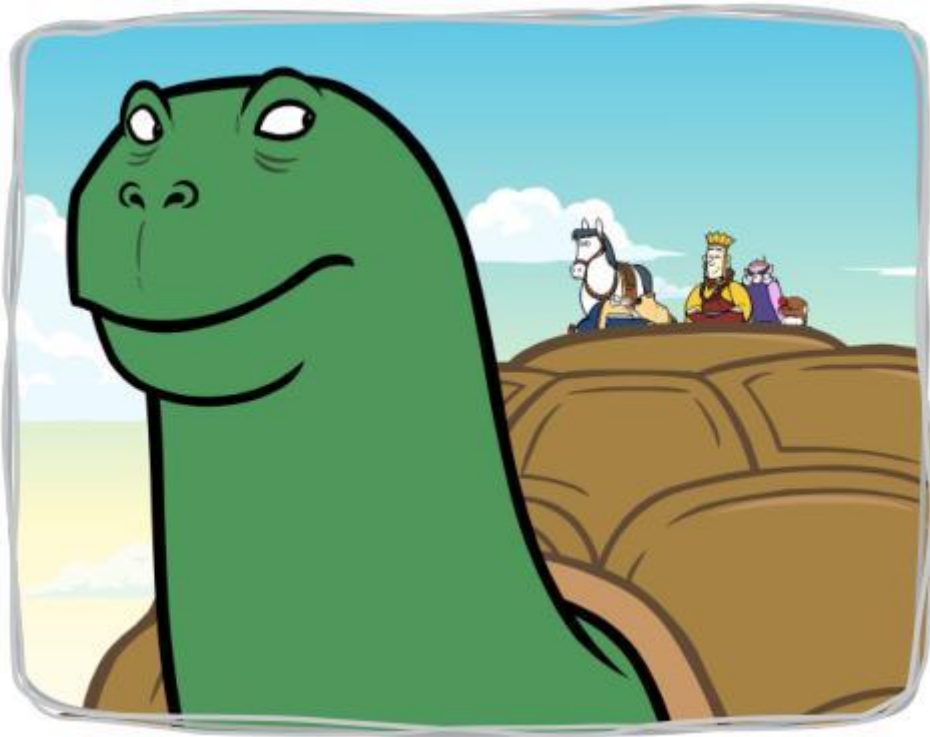

“I know who you are,” interrupted the turtle. . .

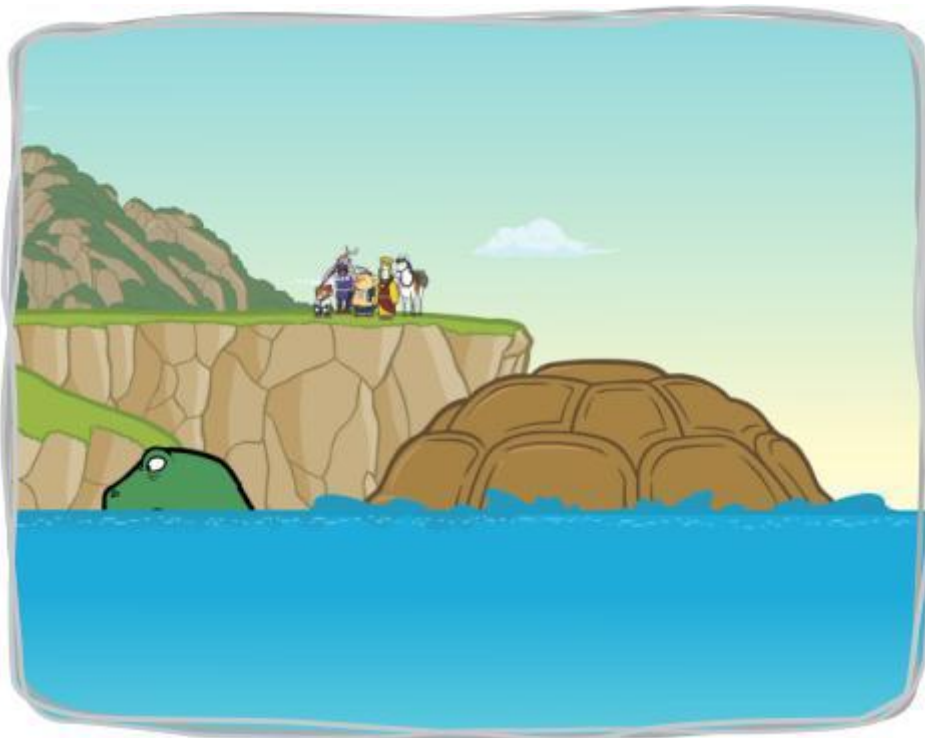

“How do we know we can trust you? ” Wukong said. . .

The villagers came out from behind the trees and waved. . .

The turtle glanced back at the Tang Monk. . .

The travelers stepped onto dry land. . .

“Stop complaining,” said Wukong. . .

“Look!” said the Tang Monk, pointing. . .

The monkey shook his head. “That’ s a bad place” . . .

Bajie patted his stomach. “Sorry, I’ m a bit hungry.”

“No, ” said Wukong sharply. “Stay here” . . .
