Topic 6—Lesson 2(下篇)

A piece of advice you have received

IELTS Speaking Part 2 (10 minutes)

You will be given one minute to prepare to talk about the topic on the task card. You will have to talk for 1-2 minutes, and then the teacher will give you feedback for 2-3mins. (5 minutes)

Describe some advice you received for your study.

You should say:

what the advice was

who gave you this advice

why you needed this advice and explain how important the advice to you.

Tips: During the first stage of Part 2, you don't need to talk. Keep the questions in mind and think them over.

2.3 Here is another model for the IELTS Speaking Part 2. We will focus on the words and expressions highlighted and in red below. (5 minutes)

Model 2

What the advice was: It is really hard to tell what is good or bad advice these days. In the modern era one can find all manners of advice online, which makes receiving advice in person either a positive thing or a negative one. Luckily, some sound advice I received a few years ago was on the positive side. Someone told me, "in order to truly appreciate and study art, you must first try to create a work of art yourself."

Who gave you this advice: My best friend from childhood was the one that gave me this piece of advice.

Why you needed this advice: The reason I needed this advice was that I was dating this girl that was always dragging me to art galleries. I wanted to impress her so badly that I had asked numerous friends about how to study art well.

How was this advice to you: Ironically, the advice made a lot of sense to me. For one whole week I gathered my own materials. I bought paint brushes, water colours, and special paper. My friend was right. After I created my own work of art, I was able to better understand the various types of art showcased at the galleries. Since then, I have gradually become so interested in studying art that I even made up my mind to be an artist in the future.

IV. IELTS Speaking Part 3 (10 mins)

1. Please answer the following question from Part 3. According to your answer, the teacher will give you feedback on how to improve your organisational skills. (5 minutes)

How to organise your answer in Part 3:

T: Topic Sentence + S: Supporting Details (Explanation/Examples)

Who usually gives you advice in your life? Do you think such advice is useful?

T: I live a rather secluded life, so I tend to get advice from scientific articles and research.

S: As a matter of fact, the main reason why I am quite in favour of suggestions from these sources is that they are usually trustworthy. Specifically speaking, I find the advice about healthy lifestyles and time management to be the most useful due to the fact that they have been peer reviewed by experts in their respective fields of study. Having adopted much valuable advice from these materials, I am now more capable of arranging my daily schedules while also being healthy, which to some extent helps me keep a reasonable balance between work and rest.

2. You will learn some key words and expressions from these questions. Pay attention to the structure of the underlined sentences, and the words in red. (5 minutes)

Key Words and Models

How do you judge whether a piece of advice is helpful or not?

I think the best way to access whether a piece of advice is helpful or not is to gauge how many people it has helped. Many people are out of their depth when it comes to many subjects, so it seems the best strategy to see how similar advice has helped the masses with their issues. Once you have enough data to back up a particular piece of advice, then you can begin to move forward with deciding if the advice is applicable to your situation.

What will you do if you think some advice given by others is not helpful?

The normal response to this question is nothing out of the ordinary; I would simply ignore the advice. Obviously, there is good advice and bad advice and the best method to decide on which is which varies for each individual. To me the best thing about advice is that you have the ultimate choice on whether or not to actually follow it. Therefore, if you happen to follow bad advice, you really have no one to blame but yourself. You know what is best for you and people's advice should always be taken with a grain of salt.
