

JOURNEY to the WEST 18

The Robe

Wukong and Guanyin flew over the ocean and back to the wide river. . .

The dragon rose from the river and bowed. . .

When the light faded, a horse stood. . .

The Tang Monk fell to his knees and bowed. . .

“Do you need a ride?” called a voice. . .

When The Tang Monk turned to thank the boatman, the boat was gone. . .

They walked some more until they reached a Buddhist monastery. . .

That evening the Tang Monk and Wukong ate a meal with the priests. . .

“You are going to get the True Scriptures,” said the priest. . .

The Tang Monk handed the robe to the priest. . .

“I can’ t return this robe. I must have it!”
