Model 2

What and how: A foreign culture that I find extremely interesting is Spanish culture, especially as it relates to Flamenco. I first learned about this type of traditional dance form when I took an art appreciation course in high school.

What: From what I can gather, the Spanish culture is full of passionate people that created a series of amazing dances. The dance I find most fascinating is the Flamenco, which is an art form and genre of music and dance native to Southern Spain. There are actually over fifty styles of Flamenco.

Why: Flamenco is not only a kind of art form but also through dancing conveys people's enthusiasm for life, which fascinates me. From the passionate and elegant movements of Flamenco, I can feel Spanish people's positive attitudes towards life — life is filled with dancing and happiness everywhere and whenever, so the Spanish people dance anywhere at any time. I have to say this kind of cultural belief is pretty unique compared with other cultures. I am longing for the day that I will visit Spain and dance with Spanish people in the streets.

You are required to talk for the full 2 minutes.

Key words and key sentences

figure out

Example: There are many skills and abilities that can be learnt from travelling abroad. Travelers can learn a foreign language while being immersed in a native language environment. Travelling to other countries can also teach one to be self-reliant and gives one the potential opportunity to figure out the hidden attributes one never knew he or she had.

unwillingness

Example: I think that in the future different cultures will remain distinct for several reasons. One reason that cultures will remain separate is due to most people's unwillingness to part with their traditions. Another reason that they will stay independent is because of the language barrier, which I believe will always be a feature of human society.

exotic

Example: According to Chinese professors like Yan Xuetong, with whom I happen to agree, foreign culture has had a profound effect on Chinese culture. Western culture has influenced what and how Chinese people like to drink. For example, it never used to be popular to consume coffee but now it seems there is a Starbucks on every corner, which is filled with people enjoying this exotic drink.

2. Imagine you are a candidate in the IELTS test. The teacher is an examiner. Please answer the questions below with what you have learned to develop your IELTS answers. (5 mins)

Please give two supporting ideas at least for each question.
