Model 1

What and Why: I took a short course during summer break last year. It was a short course which was about digital photography. As a newbie and big fan of photography, I wanted to learn some basic but practical photography skills, so I took this three-week course as soon as I saw its advertisement on the Internet.

What the exact content was: This short course taught beginners some basic skills of photography, for example, how to choose the right position to view an object and how to adjust the camera to produce a clear image. Teachers of this short course were very patient. They explained these skills to us carefully.

What you learned: From the short course, I learned how to choose the right position and make good use of light for photography. Now I can take clear and beautiful pictures, and sometimes I share them with my family and friends, which is a pleasure in life.

Model 2

What: I would like to talk about a twenty-day abstract painting course.

Why: Two years ago, my friend recommended this course to me. As a person who was quite interested in abstract painting, I took this course immediately.

What the exact content was: This was a great class for beginners. The teacher of this course was a young and elegant lady, who was very professional and patient. She taught us the principles of abstract painting and mixing colours by giving living examples. In addition, based on our different characters she observed, she patiently helped us develop our own abstract painting style through individual guidance.

What you learned: My painting skills improved after this class. Now, I know how to mix colours together to create new ones, and I can even design abstract pictures of my own style. I know there is still a long way to go and I will keep learning in the future.

You are required to talk for the full 2 minutes.

3. Imagine you are a candidate in the IELTS test. The teacher is an examiner. Please answer the questions below with what you have learned to develop your IELTS answers. (9 mins)
