3.2 Here is another model for the IELTS Speaking Part 2. We will focus on the sentences highlighted below. (4 mins)

Model 2

What: Last year, three classmates and I conducted a survey in an economically-depressed community in Beijing. This project was one of the most successful projects I've ever done with others.

When and who: Last summer, my research team was studying the state of healthcare for the elderly in Beijing. Three classmates and I were responsible for collecting data in a selected community under the direction of a researcher.

How: Our initial step was to hand out leaflets in the community in order to publicise our project. Most of our target population seemed to take a personal interest in this project. After gaining the participants' permission, we collected data through face-to-face interviews and questionnaires. On average, we interviewed about 30 people a day. Over a week, we covered over 75 percent of the target elderly people in that community.

How you felt: We never imagined that this project would be so successful. By the end of it, we had collected over 150 completed questionnaires, and fulfilled our assigned task with flying colours. In addition, we sharpened our research skills and helped the researcher polish off his research project. It was a win-win situation for everyone involved.

IV. IELTS Speaking Part 3 (10 mins)

1. Read and learn the following key words and sentences for the IELTS Part 3. You are suggested to apply these words in the following steps. (5 mins)

Key words and key sentences

irreplaceable

 Example: There is no denying that teamwork plays an irreplaceable role in our lives. Effective teamwork maximises individuals' strengths and minimises their potential weaknesses, which leads to a workplace or a team that is efficient, dynamic and productive. As the saying goes, "Many hands make light work." Personally, I could not agree more.

collaborate

 Example: I generally like to work in groups because I see the value of many minds collaborating on issues together. Time and time again I have personally experienced a group turning in brilliant results because one idea led to another which, in turn, led to another. Conversely, I like working alone on projects that require independent thought so I don't become distracted.

emerge

 Example: I guess that communication skills are most important when working with others. To function successfully in a group, individuals need to be able to communicate clearly on both intellectual and emotional levels. Only in this way, a healthy working climate can emerge and an effective working process can form.

2. Imagine you are a candidate in the IELTS test. The teacher is an examiner. Please answer the questions below with what you have learned to develop your IELTS answers. (5 mins)

Please give two supporting ideas at least for each question.

What do you think of teamwork?

Do you prefer to do things with others or alone?

What are the most important things when working with others?

V. Summary (5 mins)

Key sentences

Occasionally, I like meeting new people because I can end up having great conversations and making good friends, whereas sometimes I find it to be an anxious experience.

I would say someone who is trustworthy, considerate and reliable is likely to be my friend.

I've heard of pen-pals who had never really met up in person, but could still communicate naturally.

Effective teamwork maximises individuals' strengths and minimises their potential weaknesses, which leads to a workplace or a team that is efficient, dynamic and productive.

I generally like to work in groups because I see the value of many minds collaborating on issues together. Time and time again I have personally experienced a group turning in brilliant results because one idea led to another which, in turn, led to another.
