What and when: I would like to talk about the programme whose name is Let's Get Real with Mike Robbins. This is really an honest, refreshing, and inspirational radio talk show. I began to listen to it when I was a freshman.

What content: This programme was hosted by Mike Robbins, who was a bestselling author and a personal development expert. In this program, Mike invited people from different walks of life as his guests. He and his guests talked about many topics. These topics reminded people that being your authentic self was the most important aspect of growth. I liked these topics very much and sometimes I even share some of them with my friends.

Why: It is really a meaningful programme for me. It made me realize the significance of being myself and gave me guidance on how to be my authentic self. However, it was a pity that Mike Robbins got killed in a traffic accident one year ago, so this programme had to come to an end.
