Model 1

When and where: I would like to talk about a well-known story, "To Pull Up the Seedlings to Help Them Grow", written in China. My grandpa told me this story when I was little.

What it is about: Once upon a time, an old farmer planted a plot of rice. Every day he went to the field to watch the seedlings grow. He thought they were growing too slowly. He got impatient with the young plants. Suddenly he thought of an idea. He decided to pull the seedlings up half an inch to make them taller. When he finished pulling, he said "how much taller the plants have grown in one night!" Afterwards, with great satisfaction, he told his son what he had done in a happy tone. His son was shocked. He was heart-broken to see all the pulled-up young plants dying.

How you felt: This story really impressed me a lot. It is a bit like the English proverb "Haste makes waste".

注 : To Pull Up the Seedlings to Help Them Grow: 揠苗助长
