Model 2

What: In my opinion, the advent of the train was an important invention in human history.

When: I can't tell you exactly when the train was invented. However, I think its creation could date back to the age of the invention of the steam machine made by James Watt in UK.

How it is used: Ever since it was invented, the train has been a major tool of transportation due to its ability to carry an enormous amount of passengers. It was at first used for the transportation of soldiers and materials. Decades afterwards, with the soaring pace of modernisation, the train has transformed into a common way of transportation that carries numerous people to distant places within only a few hours.

How: The invention of the train has accelerated the process of exchanging goods between different places, and has also led to the mixing of different cultures across the globe. It has created new routes and has enabled trade. Every cultural exchange starts with the exchange of goods, which was heavily improved upon by the invention of the train.
