Model 2

When and what: Three months ago, I graduated from my university. Just at that time, I got two job offers. One was from a state-owned company and the other was from a foreign company. The salary offered by the state-owned company was not very high but the job was not tiring at all. By contrast, the salary offered by the foreign company was decent but the job was challenging and tiring.

How you felt: It was really a tough choice. I did not know which one I should choose. I turned to my parents and friends for help. However, what they told me was just following my heart. After a week's consideration, I decided to work in the foreign company.

Whether: Now, I am busy with my work every day. Through dealing with many challenging tasks, my communication skills and cooperation skills improve. I become more efficient than before. I believe I have made the right choice.

You are required to talk for the full 2 minutes.

I like chatting with my friends over coffee during my free time. That is a great pleasure in life.

Life is always moving forward and people keep changing. For childhood friends who share different values with me now, we have nothing to talk about, so keeping in touch with them becomes less important.

Perhaps the most important decisions people are faced with are what to study, what kind of career they want, what job to take, and how to raise their children.
