Key Words and Models

pertain to

 Example: My favourite colour is orange due to its rich symbolism and the fact that I like the way the colour looks on me. As it pertains to fashion I enjoy the way various shades of orange are able to mesh with a number of different colours, especially black. This colour is also interesting to me because it represents warmth. It has the energy of the colour red while also encapsulating happiness found in the colour yellow.

judge a book by its cover

 Example: There are many interpretations of how a person's choice in what colours they choose to wear is related to their personality. Also certain colours when worn can externally represent inside emotions and represent an entire group. For example, people who love darker colours and wear only black are associated with being gothic. However, it is true that you cannot judge a book by its cover, so basing your opinions solely on the colours one wears is never a good idea.

 Example: The colour red is by far the most recognised and prevalent colour with special meanings in China. According to the Chinese culture, red represents happiness and good luck, and is found throughout various ancient artifacts, such as the Forbidden City. Yellow is another colour with special meaning in the Chinese culture as it represents good luck similar to red, and is actually paired with red quite often.

2.1 Here is a model for the IELTS Speaking Part 2. We will focus on the words and expressions highlighted and in red below. (8 minutes)

Model 1

What the music is & what kind of music it is: A notable piece of music that is worth mentioning a thousand times over is Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata. For me this represents the pinnacle of classical music.

Where you first heard it: This piece of music first appeared in my life during my pre-teenage years. There was a period when I was obsessed with classical music and bought many albums composed of all the famous pieces throughout the last two centuries. As I was scrolling through the list of classical songs one lonely night, I distinctly stopped on this piece in particular. I was captivated the first moment I heard its ominous tones as I am most attracted to classical pieces in the minor key.

Why you like it: From what I understand, this particular piece of music was also quite popular at the time it was conceived in the early 1800's and the fact that this piece still manages to resonate with an audience today is nothing short of amazing. I especially like the first movement as it really serves to set the tone and pace for this musical composition. This song gives me the ability to reflect on the world because it seems to be very thought-provoking. Although many might perceive this song to be depressing with its sharp-c notes, I find that its melody has the opposite effect on me and even uplifts my mood.

注: Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata 贝多芬月光奏鸣曲 sharp-c note C 小调

You are required to talk for the full 2 minutes.
