Writing Tools

We are going to learn how the way we write has changed over time.

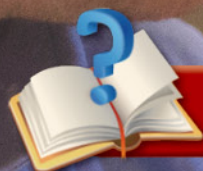

Warm-up

2 min

Do you like writing? What tools do you use to write?

Reading*3 min

Read with the teacher and then move to the Grammar Focus.

Writing has been around for many years. These days, when we want to write something, we will reach for a pen or a computer, but this wasn't always so. A long time ago, before the pen was invented, people used different kinds of tools to write something down.

Grammar Focus

- Before means earlier than the time or event mentioned. It acts as a conjunction here. The conjunction “before” joins one clause to another.
- e.g. I always feed the dogs before I have dinner.
Before I have dinner, I always feed the dogs.

Reading

3 min

Read with the teacher and then answer the question below.

In ancient times, before paper was invented, people would use many different things to write on. Some people would use stones or clay, while others would use wax or animal skins to write something on.

Have you ever wrote on something other than paper?

Read with the teacher and then answer the question below.

After the invention of computers, people stopped making so many handwritten notes. Instead they started to turn to computers to write on, as these are more writer-friendly and efficient. Nowadays, most people choose to use a computer's keyboard to type the words they want to write rather than picking up the pen and paper.

How did writing become easier?

Reading*4 min

Read with the teacher and then move to the Word Focus.

The way people write changes as technology progresses. Perhaps people will write less and less in the future. Instead they might talk to their computers, and what they say could be written and saved, without them typing a single word.

Can you think of another way that writing might change?

Word Focus

- The more you study, the more you will progress in school.
- What language do you want to progress more in?
