Your favourite TV programme

I. Pronunciation practice (5 mins)

Try to read the tongue twister as fast as you can.

When everything is ready, let's have a break and eat some great bread.

II. IELTS Speaking Part 1 (10 mins)

1. Read and learn the following key words and sentences for the IELTS Part 1. You are suggested to apply these words in the following steps. (5 mins)

Key words and key sentences

dominant

Example: Traditionally, three generations of an extended family was the dominant family structure in Chinese society. However, rapid economic growth has caused a change to it. That makes the nuclear family the representative family structure at present, especially among urban families. Extended families living together has become increasingly more uncommon.

conflict

Example: In my opinion, it is not appropriate for a young person to do so. This is supported by the widespread incidence of grandparents in China spoiling their grandchildren, leading to these children being referred to as “Little Emperors”. Secondly, the older generation more or less cannot accept modern attitudes towards society, leading to a generation conflict.

conduct

Example: Praising proper conduct is both necessary and correct, but should be limited to oral praise instead of material rewards. Material rewards do not provide any basis for moral development, while oral praise encourages children to become more positive and active. It is vital to find the balance between building up a child's self-esteem and overpraising them.

Extend your answer to 3-4 sentences. It's easier to get 6.5.

2. Imagine you are a candidate in the IELTS test. The teacher is an examiner. Please answer the questions below with what you have learned to develop your IELTS answers. (5 mins)

What has been the biggest change in family structure in China over the past decades?

Do you think it is good for young people to live with their grandparents?

Should parents reward their children when they succeed at something?

Tips for getting a higher score:

1. Answer directly
2. Give reasons

and explain why you like it.

3.1 Here is a model for the IELTS Speaking Part 2. We will focus on the sentences highlighted below. (4 mins)

Model 1

What: My favourite TV programme is the Chinese version of Running Man, which is a widely popular reality show in China.

What about: The show is hosted by seven actors and certain guests are invited to each episode. Together, they break into teams and participate in a group competition to complete a certain mission. The team which completes their assigned task successfully in the shortest time receives a prize, whilst the losing team is left out in the cold.

How often: I regularly watch Running Man on Friday nights. I find it quite amusing.

Why: I find this show to be immensely enjoyable for the following reasons. Many of the celebrities I follow make guest appearances on the program. The audience gets a glimpse of the personal lives of these superstars, while the hosts are able to converse in a funny and amusing manner. This keeps the show pretty interesting, which is generally what I'm looking for in entertainment.
