- Recall the text from lesson (A). Complete the text in your own words.

In 1929, three years after his flight over the North Pole, the American explorer, R.E. Byrd, successfully flew over the South Pole for the first time. Though, at first, Byrd and his men were able to take a great many photographs of the mountains that lay below, they soon ran into serious trouble. At one point, it seemed certain that their plane would crash. It could only get over the mountains if it rose to 10,000 feet. Byrd at once ordered his men to throw out two heavy food sacks. The plane was then able to rise and it _____. Byrd now knew that he would be able to reach the South Pole which was 300 miles away, for there were no more mountains in sight. The airplane was able to _____.
