'To end our special news bulletin,' said the voice of the television announcer, 'we're going over to the macaroni fields of Calabria. Macaroni has been grown in this area for ^[1] over six hundred years. Two of the leading growers, George and Mike, tell me that they have been expecting a splendid crop this year and harvesting has begun earlier than usual.

1. ...they have been expecting a splendid...

现在完成进行时

➤ Use [present perfect continuous tense] (have/has + been doing) to express what happened in the past and continues to the present time.

E.g. (1) She has been waiting for you all day (and she is still waiting now).

(2) I have been working on this since this morning (and I still haven't finished it).

(3) They have been travelling since last October (and they are not home yet).

Here you can see two workers who, between them, have just finished cutting three cartloads of golden brown macaroni stalks (梗). The whole village has been working day and night gathering (收庄稼) and threshing (打庄稼) this year's crop before the September rains. On the right, you can see Mrs. Watson herself. She has been helping her husband for thirty years now.

2. ...who, between them, have just...

➤ Parenthesis (插入语):

- a word / phrase / clause which is inserted into a grammatically complete sentence
- for explanation or amplification
- usually marked with commas or dashes

E.g. (1) He hopes, as we all do, that the project will be successful.

(2) His discovery, which I think, was great.

(3) He was — to me at least — a person of dignity.

Mrs. Watson is talking to the manager of the local factory where the crop is processed.

This last scene shows you what will happen at the end of the harvest: the famous Calabrian macaroni-eating competition! Jay, the present champion, has won it every year since 1991. And that ends our special bulletin for today, Thursday, April 1st. We're now going back to the studio.'

3. ...local factory where the crop...

= ...local factory in which the crop...

➤ where = in which, with 'which' referring to the antecedent (先行词) 'factory'.

E.g. (1) This is the park where the carnival was held.

= This is the park in which the carnival was held.

(The carnival was held in the park.)

(2) The shop where robbery took place isn't open.

= The shop in which robbery took place isn't open.

(Robbery took place in the shop.)

F. Extra exercise

- Write an imaginary scene of macaroni-eating competition.

The appearance of six competitors – all very fat – their past achievement – huge quantity of macaroni prepared, weighed and served

Possible answer:

F. Extra exercise

- Write an imaginary scene of macaroni-eating competition.

The appearance of six competitors – all very fat – their past achievement – huge quantity of macaroni prepared, weighed and served

Possible answer:

Last Friday, a macaroni-eating competition took place in Calabria where macaroni has been grown for over 600 years. Six competitors were taking part in it. They were all very fat and they have all won such competition before. But this time, they hope to get even better scores than ever. As usual, huge quantity of macaroni had been prepared and weighed before the competition, and it was served continuously during the competition.
