Model 2

Where and who: Back in high school, my entire class went for a picnic at Beijing's National Park. It was the first time I had ever been on a picnic, thus making it an unforgettable experience.

What you ate and drank: I can still recall eating what we cooked there. Since it was such an isolated location, we brought our own kitchenware with us. As there were thirty students in total, we divided ourselves into three groups. The first group was in charge of cooking rice, which was difficult over an open fire. The second group was responsible for slicing the fruits and vegetables and making the salad. The last group, which I was in, took charge of the most challenging part — grilling the fish. Though it was burnt a little, everyone said it was yummy. For the drinks, we had imported German beer that we had bought from a local market.

How you felt: That picnic has left a lasting impression on me. Not only did I enjoy preparing a meal and drinking in a scenic environment, but I also managed to spend quality time with my classmates. To this day, I still look back on this memory with fondness. That youthful time has always been one of the most precious moments in my life.

You are required to talk for the full 2 minutes.

IV. IELTS Speaking Part 3 (10 mins)

1. Read and learn the following key words and sentences for the IELTS Part 3. You are suggested to apply these words in the following steps. (5 mins)

Key words and key sentences

annoyance

 Example: Eating a picnic lunch outdoors gives you a chance to look at the beautiful scenery, as well as the opportunity to explore nature. On the other hand, if you're unlucky, you may attract different kinds of insects such as mosquitoes, which can be an annoyance, especially if you don't have insect repellent.

be aware of

 Example: From my perspective, there are two main differences. Compared with eating outdoors, an indoor meal is rarely affected by the weather. If you're eating in an open-air environment, you'd better be aware of what the weather will be like. Additionally, many people enjoy eating outdoors due to the sounds nature naturally provides, which eating indoors can't compete with.

external

 Example: Based on my experience, I assume that eating outdoors is mostly suitable for informal occasions with friends and family because it is more casual and easier to relax in an outdoor setting. For more formal occasions such as business dinners, people tend to eat in restaurants because they don't have to deal with any external factors there, like the weather or insects.

注: insect repellent 驱虫剂

2. Imagine you are a candidate in the IELTS test. The teacher is an examiner. Please answer the questions below with what you have learned to develop your IELTS answers. (5 mins)

Please give two supporting ideas at least for each question.

What do you think are the good points and the bad points about going on a picnic for lunch?

What are some differences between eating in an open-air environment and eating indoors?

On what occasions (or, in what circumstances) do people choose to eat outdoors and on what occasions do people choose to eat in a restaurant?

V. Summary (5 mins)

Key sentences

For example, thanks to the development of agricultural technology and transportation in China, people can easily get access to fresh fruits and vegetables even when they're not in season.

Without the development of farming in China, the country would not have been able to develop and thrive during the last thousand years the way that it has.

Current agricultural tools, such as artificial irrigation, have enabled food production in China to keep pace with its growing population.

if you're unlucky, you may attract different kinds of insects such as mosquitoes, which can be an annoyance, especially if you don't have insect repellent.

Compared with eating outdoors, an indoor meal can rarely be affected by the weather. If you're eating in an open-air environment, you'd better be aware of what the weather will be like.
