Haroun Tazieff, the Polish scientist, has spent his lifetime studying active volcanoes and deep caves in all parts of the world. In 1948, he went to Lake Kivu in the Congo to observe a new volcano which he later named Kituro. ^[1] Tazieff was able to set up his camp very close to the volcano while it was erupting violently. Though he managed to take a number of brilliant photographs, he could not stay near the volcano for very long.

1. Tazieff was able to set up his camp very close to the volcano while it was erupting violently.

➤ close to: not far in position

E.g. (1) I hate people standing close to me.

(2) Don't get too close to that dog.

➤ Meaning of the sentence:

When the volcano was erupting violently,

Tazieff still managed to set up his camp not far from it.

[2]

He noticed that a river of liquid rock was coming towards him. It threatened to surround him completely, but Tazieff managed to escape just in time. He waited until the volcano became quiet and he was able to return two days later. This time, he managed to climb into the mouth of Kituro so that he could take photographs and measure temperatures. Tazieff has often risked his life in this way. He has been able to tell us more about active volcanoes than any man alive.

2. ... a river of liquid rock was coming towards him.

暗喻的修辞手法

➤ This is a metaphor: There wasn't literally a "liquid rock river." The liquid rock just flowed like a river.

E.g. I am drowning in a sea of grief.

= The grief is so overwhelming that I feel like being pulled underwater.

3. He has been able ... than any man alive.

表语形容词

➤ "Alive" is a predicate adjective, and it can't be used before the nouns it modifies.

E.g. (1) This frog is alive.

(2) We don't know if he is alive or not.
