It must have been about two in the morning when I returned home. I tried to wake up my husband by ringing the doorbell, but he was fast asleep, so I got a ladder from the shed in the garden, put it against the wall, and began climbing towards the bedroom window. ^[1] I was almost there when a sarcastic voice below said, ^[2] "I don't think the windows need cleaning at this time of the night." I looked down and nearly fell off the ladder when I saw a police officer. I immediately regretted answering in the way I did, but I said, "I enjoy cleaning windows at night."

1. ... when a sarcastic voice below said ...
= ... when someone with a sarcastic voice below said ...

➤ Use a part of something to represent the whole.

E.g. (1) He advertised for hired hands (referring to workers).

(2) We had a crew list of six, but I count only five heads (referring to five people).

2. I don't think the windows need cleaning ...
= I don't think the windows need to be cleaned ...

➤ sth. needs doing = sth. needs to be done

E.g. The house needs repairing.

= The house needs to be repaired.

[3]

“So do I,” answered the police officer in the same tone. “Excuse my interrupting you. I hate to interrupt a woman when she's busy working, but would you mind coming with me to the station?”

“Well, I'd prefer to stay here,” I said. “You see. I've forgotten my key.”

“Your what?” he called.

“My key,” I shouted.

Fortunately, the shouting woke up my husband who opened the window just as the police officer had started to climb towards me.

3. So do I.

- “So + auxiliary verb (助动词) + subject”, used after a positive statement to express the subject shares the same situation.

E.g. (1) - I want some water. - So do I. (I want some water, too.)

(2) - Jack is hungry. - So am I.

- “Neither + auxiliary verb (助动词) + subject”, used after a negative statement to express the subject shares the same situation.

E.g. (1) - I don't like bananas. - Neither do I. (I don't like bananas, either.)

(2) - I can't lift the heavy box. - Neither can I.
