Model 2

What: My favourite game to participate in was “Capture the flag”. This game is pretty much a combination of “Hide and seek” and “Tag”, which made it awesome to play.

Who: I used to play this game with my classmates who lived nearby.

How: Normally, we asked at least 6 people to join the game. Before it started, we would be divided into two teams and each had a flag that we needed to hide in our territory. So the objective of the game was to capture our opponent's flag. In the process, we had to tag our enemies as many times as possible.

Why: This game brought me so much joy as a child because it taught me the importance of working together as a team. It was crucial to develop excellent strategies and cooperate effectively with each player in order to win. The skills that I gained from that part of my early childhood has put me on a very successful path in life and I still highly value the memories of the time spent playing “Capture the flag”.

You are required to talk for the full 2 minutes.
